STATE LEGISLATORS—Speaking at a Monday night general membership meeting of the Hancock County Landowners Association at the Annunciation School gymnasium in Kiln is Rep. J.P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis who represents Hancock County as Sen. Martin Smith, center, and Rep. Wade Smith, both of Poplarville, listen to the remarks. Martin Smith represents Hancock and Pearl River Counties and Wade Smith represents Pearl River. All three legislators expressed varying degrees of support of the organization. State Supreme Court first favors Bay attorney's client

By BRENT MACEY

In an unusual ruling, the Mississippi Supreme Court reversed a Pearl River County Circuit Court decision recently and set free a man who had been found guilty of rape and was serving a 20 year prison sentence.

Bay St. Louis Attorney James Tucker III, whose client Dennis McQueen, 28, of New Orleans was accused of raping his 14-year-old sister-in-law in July of 1979, obtained the favorable ruling for his client after filing petition for a rehearing before the Supreme Court.

In the initial appeal, the justices ruled to uphold the lower court jury verdict of guilty.

At that time all the justices, with the exception of one who was absent, agreed to uphold the Pearl River County Circuit Court's guilty verdict.

However, five months later, after reviewing the petition for a rehearing, four of the justices did an about face, reversed their initial decision and set McQueen free.

That opinion was joined by Justice Prather, the state's first woman supreme court justice, who took the bench after the initial appeal was ruled on in May of 1982.

William Frisbie, president of the Hancock County Bar Association, noted the action by the Supreme Court justices is "very unusual."

"It's too early to tell if the case will set any precedent," he said.

In reference to other possible action the Supreme Court might have taken, Frisbie said, "They might revise and then remand the case to the lower court for a new trial...but this (overturning a ruling and setting the accused free) has never happened before."

Supreme Court Justice Broom, one of three justices who opposed the majority and voted in favor of upholding the circuit court's guilty verdict, wrote, "I am unable to recall a prior case in which a criminal conviction was affirmed by this Court without dissent, and then (on petition for rehearing) upon a fact issue reversed and rendered."

He noted, "The court...is making a flip flop on a fact issue..."

His dissenting vote was joined by Justices Hawkins and Roy Noble Lee.

Justice Dan Lee wrote his own partial dissent, which favored the court's reversal but suggested McQueen should be brought to trial for statutory rape.

Mud waste firm planning channel for Pearl terminal

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A Hancock County oil mud waste disposal company is seeking a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' permit to dredge a channel from the East Pearl River for a barge docking facility.

Peggy Holliday, an environmental specialist at the Corps' Vicksburg District office, Tuesday confirmed Mississippi Pumping Service of Waveland plans to dredge a channel in Hancock near the former Napoleon Community area in the National Space Technology Laboratories' Acoustic Buffer Zone.

Curtis W. Johnson of the company applied for the permit in order to develop a barge terminal, Holliday said.

The Corps specialist reported the company plans to begin digging the channel in January if the project is approved.

The Waveland company has been importing oil well drilling mud through the Port Bienville Industrial Park terminal from offshore Louisiana operations and disposing the material in holding ponds in the county.

Oil mud wastes result after drilling mud, chemicals and water is pumped down an oil well drilling shaft to cool and lubricate the drill bit. The mud which then contains oil returns to the surface, flows into holding ponds or tanks and is then transported to disposal areas.

Mud disposed by the Waveland company is unloaded from barges at the port and transported by truck to inland disposal areas on Bayou LaCroix and Firetower Roads.

Several months ago Johnson attempted to purchase property at a port turning basin for the mud unloading operation.

However, W. Wilson Webre, Hancock Port and Harbor Commission executive director, expressed dissatisfaction with Mississippi Pumping Service's port operations because of the wear and tear to dock facilities.

The commission agreed to lease, but not sell the property to the company since the basin is a public facility.

Bill Barnett, industrial wastewater section chief of the State Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Pollution Control in Jackson Tuesday reported the company has delayed plans to build another mud waste facility in the Napoleon area and shut down LaCroix operations.

He said the present lull in oil and gas drilling is the prime reason for the company's delay.

The Corps recently issued a public notice of Mississippi Pumping Service's intentions to dredge the channel.

Johnson was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

Holliday said the Corps is seeking public comments regarding the dredging work and the State Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Marine Resources in Long Beach must issue a certificate of consistency with the Mississippi Coastal Program since the work is in a Coastal Zone Management Area before the work is approved.

Both Holliday and Joe Gill, BMR Wetlands Division chief, recently reported the channel is listed generally for industrial use, but did not know the specific proposed use.

"We'll have to find out the specific channel use at some point," Gill stated.

The division chief reported the BMR and Corps must jointly approve or deny the company's request, but only after a public hearing.

The Corps notice reports the proposed channel is 980 feet long with all except 90 feet in a wetland area, has a top width of 150 feet, a bottom width of 114 feet and a depth of 12 feet.

A dragline will be utilized for the project to excavate 57,500-cubic-yards of material which will be spread and compacted on either side of the channel, the notice states.

In addition, Mississippi Pumping plans to "drive one-fourth-inch thick steel sheet piling 100 feet along each side of the channel outlet including 50 feet on the Pearl to minimize erosion, the notice reports."

The Corps must also conduct an environmental assessment of the type of industrial activity planned for the terminal site to decide if a permit should be issued for the channel, the notice states.

State senator, representatives attend landowner meet

Legislators endorse efforts to change mineral rights

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Two state legislators expressed strong support Monday night of Hancock County Landowners Association efforts to change Mississippi's separate mineral ownership laws.

Sen. Martin Smith and Rep. Wade Smith of Poplarville both wholeheartedly endorsed the organization's efforts.

Martin Smith represents Hancock and Pearl River Counties and Wade Smith represents Pearl River.

Rep. J.P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis who represents Hancock expressed support of the groups efforts, but said it was premature for the organization to take a definite stand.

The legislators offered comments and answered questions at a general membership meeting of the local group at the Annunciation School gymnasium in Kiln which some 30 people attended.

Wade Smith said since he took office he has filed bills in every session of the Legislature calling for a law similar to Louisiana's under which a property owner automatically owns all minerals under his or her land after possessing the parcel for 10 years.

The representative feels mineral rights owners should at least pay taxes just as property owners because mineral ownership frequently is worth 50 times more than surface land value.

Individuals or firms selling land may reserve all or a portion of their mineral rights by purchasing a one-time tax

He noted the revenues from mineral rights taxes could help solve state government financial problems.

Smith said efforts to secure a retroactive law could raise constitutional questions which might have to be eventually answered by the State Supreme Court.

"To get what you (the landowners) want will take a lot of hard work and money, and there's no guarantee the legislature will pass exactly what you want," he stated.

Smith added that facts and figures will have to be gathered and organized to present an effective legislative appeal.

Martin Smith, who helped draft a charter and by-laws for the Mississippi Landowners Association, reported in past years he has filed three legislative bills seeking some sort of taxation on mineral rights.

He said the three bills include:
—Giving one-sixth of underground mineral production revenues to surface owners as liquidated damages;
—Ad valorem taxation of minerals.

Record crowds expected for Eighth Gumbo Festival

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The largest crowds yet are expected at the Eighth Annual Gumbo Festival which begins Friday afternoon in the Necaise Crossing Community.

A new site will be initiated in this year's event on the west side of Hwy. 603 about one-fourth of a mile south of the original festival area next to St. Matthew the Apostle Catholic Church.

Louis J. Breaux III, Gumbo Festival Committee chairman, Monday said 4,000 people are expected to attend the event Friday and 7,000-8,000 are anticipated to participate in Saturday and Sunday festivities.

"We're expecting the largest crowd ever because we have sold more ads in our cookbook, advance tickets and raffle tickets than before," he stated.

He reported large signs will be erected on Hwy. 603 to guide motorists to the festival grounds.

Several months ago the Biloxi Diocese of the Catholic Church decided that the event be moved from the original site.

The festival was organized to raise funds for construction of a new Infant of Prague Catholic Church which is now St. Matthew.

Breaux said event though the festival committee has incurred considerable expense to relocate the event, the group hopes to be able to pay an upcoming annual loan payment.

The committee chairman noted the event will now be conducted at a 55-acre site where five acres have been fenced with a six-foot-high chain link fence to improve crowd control.

Other site improvements include a four-inch artesian water well, 88 camping sites offering electricity and water, and a 40-foot by 120-foot pavilion for cooking, dining and concessions, Breaux said.

Also, land was cleared, a lawn was planted and some 1000-cubic-yards of fill dirt was moved to enhance the new site, the committee chairman reported.

In addition, he noted a dumping station is available to owners of recreational vehicles.

The festival will open at 5 p.m. with two performances by traditional country music singer John Anderson.

Saturday entertainment includes performances by country singers David Frizell and Shelley West, and Lousiana Cajun and country performer Jimmy C. Newman.

Saturday night Allen Fontenot and the Country Cajuns will provide music for a fais-do-do dance beginning at 9.

Country singer Margo Smith will perform Sunday along with The Kendalls with their gospel and country music show.

Breaux said one of the major events will be a gumbo cooking contest Sunday in which entries are expected from as far away as Morgan City, La.

He reported another interesting event will be a gumbo eating contest Saturday night.

"We also will have more than 25 booths offering arts and crafts, souvenirs and electronic games for children—young and old," Breaux stated.

The committee chairman added crowd control will be beefed up with 12-14 deputies hired to patrol the area along with two mounted deputies posting the festival parking area where security lighting has been installed.

Also for the first time this year a limited edition poster commemorating the eighth annual event will be sold at the festival and at a Biloxi frame shop.

Hayward Ladner of Biloxi who has a financial interest in Frames by Connie of that city and Magnolia Poster Gallery in Hattiesburg Tuesday said the full-color poster is a limited edition of 2,000.

The posters are signed and numbered by the artist, R.P. Johnston of Hattiesburg, Ladner noted.

Ladner said the poster depicts a still-life arrangement of gumbo ingredients and a 500-gallon gumbo pot which is a festival attraction.

Frames by Connie is the shop selling the posters.

Ladner added the work also bears the official festival seal.

FESTIVAL POSTER—Displaying a poster commemorating the Eighth Annual Gumbo Festival slated to begin Friday in the Necaise Crossing Community is Hayward Ladner of Biloxi. He reports the limited edition posters are signed and numbered by artist Rupert Johnston of Hattiesburg and will be available for purchase at the weekend event. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

CONFERENCE LEADERS

Two Mississippi State grid-derers are among the top 10 returnees in Southeastern Conference "all-purpose" running statistics.

Senior end Glen Young, a 6-2, 205-pound speedster, was third in the league last year with 283 yards on 18 pass receptions, 307 yards on 19 punt returns, two yards on one rush, and 407 yards on 18 kickoff returns.

That worked out to an all-purpose total of 778 yards in games (he missed two contests and parts of another game with a pulled groin muscle) for an average of 106.8 yards per contest.

And teammate Michael Haddix, a 6-3, 215-pound halfback from Walnut, waited for 763 all-purpose yards in 11 games for a 69.4 average. That was 11th best a year ago.

and the ninth-leading total by a player returning for duty in 1982.

Young has averaged a phenomenal 39.6 per all-purpose play and can possibly break the school record of 14.5 yards per time handled if Young reaches the minimum 175 career plays.

Testimony during the trial conducted in Piquette in March of 1981 revealed the juvenile was visiting her sister who had recently moved to Piquette after separating from her husband, Dennis McQueen, in New Orleans.

Dennis McQueen brought some furniture from New Orleans to Piquette, he asked his estranged wife if he could take their two-year-old son for a ride.

His wife did not want the baby to accompany her husband alone, so she requested her teenage sister accompany them.

According to testimony from the juvenile, McQueen, the baby and she went to the store.

On the way back to the house, the juvenile testified that McQueen told her he was lost, stopped the truck on a back road on the pretext of having to go to the bathroom, and then raped her.

The juvenile claimed McQueen told her to take off her clothes, and lie down on the driver's side of the vehicle half way outside the door.

When cross examined by Tucker concerning what force was used during the rape, she answered, "Well, the tone of his voice and that, for first of all. Okay, second of all, by not letting me get up when I wanted to, when I wanted to stop and just by making me do something that went against my will."

The juvenile also testified McQueen had been drinking, that she was afraid of him for this reason and did not struggle.

A doctor who examined the juvenile shortly after she was raped testified that he could not determine any evidence of rape.

Five of the supreme court justices concurred after reviewing transcripts that the verdict should be reversed, "based on the fact that the evidence in this case was legally insufficient to support a conviction and not on the weight of the evidence."

Tucker noted Justice Prather was the only justice who ruled immediately upon reviewing the case to reverse the circuit court decision.

All other justices—with the exception of Justice Dan Lee who was absent when the appeal was first ruled on—originally agreed that the guilty verdict should be upheld after reviewing the appeal.

In reference to preference setting, Tucker feels the decision "defines more clearly the line between sufficiency of evidence and weight of evidence."

He feels future cases where evidence is ruled insufficient, may lead to decisions being reversed and the accused being set free without a retrial.

Chief Supreme Court Justice Neville Patterson this week would not comment on the issue, stating the Supreme Court ruling would speak for itself.

Arson squad probing Shoreline house fire

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department Arson Investigation Squad is probing a three-alarm Wednesday afternoon fire which completely destroyed a Shoreline Park residence.

William Field Jr., East Hancock Volunteer Fire Department administrative chief, said at the fire scene the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Schwartz and their two daughters on the north side Gulf Street east of Avenue B was destroyed in the blaze.

A neighbor heard an explosion then saw black smoke rising and flames leaping from the house and telephoned the fire department at 3:08 p.m., Field reported.

East Hancock responded to the blaze in three minutes and found the residence fully involved in flames, Field noted.

The administrative chief said Mrs. Schwartz and one daughter were the only members of the family home just before the fire and when the blaze occurred the two had already left the home to go to a nearby store.

He reported the arson squad is investigating the incident, but arson is not suspected unless the probe finds evidence the blaze was set.

Responding to the blaze were the East Hancock and Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Departments and the Waveland Fire Department.

Also assisting were Carl Olson of the Kiln Volunteer Fire Department and Don Warren of the Crossgates Fire Department in Brandon.

Both men said they were in the area, saw smoke rising and decided to assist in the fire fighting effort.

—Registration of minerals similar to Indiana law which ends fractional ownership of subsurface rights.

Smith said the state and local landowner organizations will be able to raise funds to provide witnesses at legislative hearings and lobbyists.

"I think you are kicking off a good effort," he stated.

Compretta endorsed an earlier report in the meeting by Buster Strahan of Piquette, and the state landowners group who said the Mississippi Research and Development Center and the University of Mississippi Law School is researching answers to several legal and economic questions submitted by the landowners.

He said presenting strong arguments in favor of legislation sought by the group would help convince members of the State House of Representatives and Senate to back the organization.

"It is premature for you to take a stand now because you're not ready to present your goals," Compretta stated.

Strahan reported the law school is finding legal answers to 12 questions regarding the return of severed mineral rights to property owners.

He said the R and D Center is determining how much taxes are being lost to people owning mineral rights who live outside the state.

"If these mineral owners were residents they would be paying sales and income taxes in this state," Strahan stated.

He also reported a chapter of the landowners organization is being formed in Clark County.

Strahan said landowner chapters now exist in Pearl River, Hancock, Walthall, Stone, Merritt, Jeff Davis and Lincoln Counties.

During a question and answer session, D.C. Smith, Hancock landowner's membership chairman, noted when the state purchases land for a highway right-of-way that a private landowner is forced to sell also all mineral rights on that property.

Martin Smith said he would check state laws to see if such a law exists.

In response to a question by Theresa Coleman, Hancock group president, who asked if returning all mineral rights to surface landowners would increase property value and ad valorem tax revenues, Compretta replied, "It would definitely increase the value of property and increase ad valorem tax revenues."

"This would be a good argument to the legislature, especially with the economic situation the state is in now," he stated.

A man in the audience asked why legislation in other states which ended separate mineral ownership could not be utilized in Mississippi.

Martin Smith replied, "That's the purpose of this organization, to build political momentum to please the population."

"If the masses of people want it, you'll get something done," he added. Responding to another question, Smith noted the mineral rights issue could not be brought to a vote because Mississippi is not a referendum state.

Felix Famularo, Hancock landowners vice president, urged all local residents to attend the group's meetings to help the organization develop a strong political voice.

C. J. Lee, group secretary-treasurer, reported the organization has some 180 household memberships with 120 of those joining since the group's last general membership meeting.

D.C. Smith reported assistance is needed in Pearllington and Diamondhead, and the North Bay and BaySide Park areas to increase the number of members from those portions of the county.

ETV FILM TO ENCORE—James Best portrays Ocean Springs artist Walter Anderson in Mississippi ETV's "The Islander," to be rebroadcast at 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 6, on the Mississippi ETV Network. The half-hour film was shot on location on the Mississippi Gulf Coast in 1977 and features several Anderson family members in the dramatization.

THAT NAGGING BACK
Backaches are one of the most common complaints of the American society. We find the average patient is quite convinced their backache is due to some strained muscle or internal trouble. Some patients, of course, relate it directly to an injury or fall they may have sustained in the past. There are many different causes of back pain and surgery is not always necessary. In most cases, it can be avoided if the patient is made aware of conservative Chiropractic care. A complete Chiropractic examination will pinpoint the exact cause of the back problem, along with the extent of the damage. In the majority of these cases, Chiropractic offers the most effective and safest approach to the problem of backaches. Research points out that as high as 1 out of 10 people can avoid surgery if they are cared for in time by a doctor of Chiropractic.

Bits 'n pieces

I could hardly believe my eyes Saturday evening around 6 p.m. when I was traveling South on Hwy. 603 and saw a go-cart on the highway.

As most of you know Hwy. 603 is dangerous enough to be riding in an automobile much less on a go-cart.

Traffic at the time was moderate and the girl driving the go-cart turned onto one of the streets of Jourdan River Shores.

We can recall not too long ago when there was a fatality on I-10 involving a person riding on a go-cart.

Go-carts are strictly illegal on roadways much less highways.

High school football should be buzzin' Friday night when the Bay High Tigers tangle with the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws.

We suggest persons planning on attending the game to get to Rock-A-Chaw stadium early if they expect to get a seat.

The Tigers off a double overtime victory last week have a 3-1 record and should be the favorites for this game as St. Stanislaus is seeking its first victory.

Head Coach Vernon Powell's Rocks, even though they lost last week, were in the game until the final whistle in the out of conference game with Long Beach.

Bay High Head Coach Snuffy Smith's Tigers have been giving a top performance every game this season losing only one game by one point to Pearl River Central.

The Hancock North Central Hawks, victors over Pass Christian last week, will journey to East Central.

With a season record of 2-2, Coach Irvin Farve would like to add another victory Friday night.

The Pass Christian Pirates seem to have been unable to get a steady offense rolling this season and should have their hands full when the Stone County Tomcats visit.

A victory over Stone County would be a delight to Coach Bob Lumpkin who is seeking his first victory of this season.

See you at the ball games.

While on the subject of football, some of the comments we have heard about the professional strike have been very interesting.

One friend of ours told us he had gotten more work done around his house last weekend than he had been able to in a very long time.

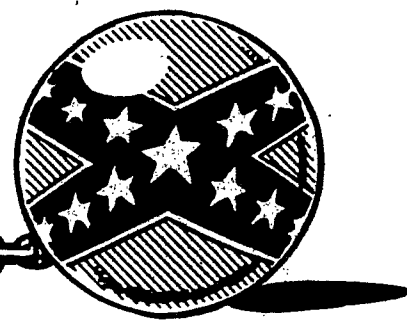

It seems the professional strike has been sort of a relief for some people.

We also know there are many folks out there who cannot wait for the Sunday and Monday professional football games.

It will be interesting to see how long the pros will go without a paycheck before they get back into action.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT RECORD AND BOOK CLUBS

Attorney General Bill Allain says that we have all seen those tempting offers to join merchandise clubs stating, "Get these three best selling books (or records or tapes) for only a dollar." Allain states that the offer to get merchandise at such a low cost often leads consumers to act without carefully reading the small print in the advertisements.

One thing that you probably would be agreeing to with such offers is the "negative option" plan—a plan where unless you inform the club that the selected merchandise is not to be sent, you will receive it and be billed for it. Under such a plan, to stop shipment or to terminate membership, you usually must notify the company by a specific date.

A federal regulation governs "negative option" plans. Here are your protections under the regulation:

According to the regulations those using a "negative option" plan must in their advertising disclose:

- That a negative option plan is used
- Any obligation to purchase a minimum amount of merchandise
- That you can cancel your membership any time after you have completed your agreement to buy a minimum amount of merchandise
- Whether charges include postage and handling fees.

—That you will be given 10 days to notify the seller that the selected merchandise is not wanted.

—The frequency with which announcements of merchandise will be sent.

Further, before sending any merchandise, the company must:

—Send an announcement identifying what will be sent and a form you can use to notify the company if you don't want the merchandise.

—Describe the procedure for notifying the company and the date by which this notice must be given.

Under this regulation, companies have to give full credit and have to pay the return postage for merchandise sent to members who have not been sent a proper form or who have not been given the required time to respond.

Finally, companies:

—Are required to ship, within four weeks any introductory or bonus merchandise.

—Are required to terminate the contract if you request it after completing your obligation.

—Are prohibited from sending substitute merchandise without first getting your approval.

The People's Business

SMALL BUSINESS AND THE ECONOMY

A new survey of the 50 states covering small business climates has placed Mississippi 26th in that category. This middle-range ranking compares to other southern states including Texas, which ranked 1st; Louisiana, 44th; Arkansas, 22nd; Tennessee 24th; and Alabama, 46th, according to the ranking by INC., a monthly business magazine.

Small business has had its share of troubles during the economic downturn. Like their larger counterparts, the recession has forced many small businesses to close their doors.

But many small businesses remain open and with prudent management and a fair shake from government, will remain the life's blood of the U.S. economy.

The Mississippi Economic Council supports the development of small business through incentives which are currently offered to firms moving into Mississippi. State and local governments should eliminate unnecessary regulations and laws which discourage the development or expansion of small business.

And continuing efforts should be made to evaluate and consolidate those agencies and activities of state government which are designed to encourage small business. At the federal level, the MEC believes the government should replace the present corporate and individual income tax schedules with more graduated rate scales.

Further, the government should adopt a simplified, accelerated capital cost recovery system, and it should continue supporting a relaxation of the tax burden of estate tax laws on family-owned businesses and farms, thereby encouraging continuity of family ownership.

Fever Is Symptom

Tips Listed for Taking Temperature

Fever is the body's way of showing that something is wrong. It is our defense mechanism to combat infection.

Someone in the family is flushed and the skin feels warm to the touch. How do you tell if fever is present, and if so, how much? Use a thermometer. The American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care tells how.

If using an oral thermometer, insert the bulb under the victim's tongue and keep it there for at least three minutes. Warn the patient not to talk or bite down. Do not take a temperature for at least 30 minutes after the patient has bathed, smoked, eaten hot or cold foods or drunk water.

To take a rectal temperature, place the patient on his stomach on a firm surface. Lubricate the bulb end of the thermometer with cold cream or petroleum jelly and insert gently about one inch. Never use force. Leave in for three minutes.

To read the thermometer, hold the end without the bulb between the thumb and the first finger. Use a good light. Look through the pointed edge toward the flat side until you see a thin silver or red line. Rotate the tube gently if the line is not visible.

The temperature reading is at the end of the silver line. The long lines mark the degrees of temperature and the short lines indicate two-tenths of a degree. An arrow points to the normal reading of 98.6. Readings higher than this indicate a fever, except in rectal temperature, which is one degree higher.

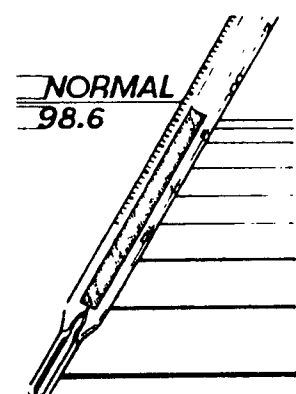

Before taking temperature, the thermometer must be shaken down so that the silver or red line reads below the 98.6 mark to approximately 95 degrees. Read the thermometer to make sure the mercury is shaken down.

Individual temperatures may run slightly above or below the average, and they may vary throughout the day, running lower in the morning and higher in the evening. Slight changes usually are not significant.

If the fever suddenly changes from slight to high, 104 degrees or more, call the doctor, or take the patient to the nearest hospital emergency room. The same advice applies if the fever persists for no obvious reason.

Aspirin and other similar medications are helpful in reducing a fever. But take these only after consulting the doctor.

A Service of the Consumer Protection Division of the Office of Bill Allain, Attorney General, P.O. Box 220, Jackson, MS 39205 (601 354 7130)

Looking through information on co-op advertising I saw a reference to "double-billing," and the bad things that can happen to participating parties. But, they didn't explain what it is—I'm worried about inadvertently becoming involved. Just A Beginner.

Dear JAB: To let everyone in on the act, let's begin with co-op—cooperative advertising. The term refers to ads prepared by a distributor, placed by a local dealer, and paid for by both.

Dealer "allowances" for co-op are usually based on a percentage of purchases. The dealer places the ads, pays for them and is then reimbursed, or given credit toward future purchases by the distributor for his share of the cost.

The availability of co-op varies between industries, but some sources say a major portion of local retail advertising is, in fact, co-op. I don't think this is generally true in smaller markets, but co-op is, and can be, very important.

For it allows the distributor to control the type of ads used; it gives the local outlet professional ad service; and, since the local dealer generally gets a lower rate than the distributor could get, they both save money.

The latter is possible because newspaper rate cards usually discount the "open rate"—the hottest rate on the price list.

These discounts are sometimes for only local business, but are always based on frequency and/or volume. So the local dealer would likely have a lower "earned" rate. This lower rate would be shared by the distributor under co-op.

But the rate differential is also where double billing comes in. The mechanics are simple. Two bills are made out by someone—one at the higher rate and one at the lower rate.

The local store pays the bill at the lower price, but marks the bill for the large amount "paid" and sends it to the distributor for his reimbursement. Thus the local "cost-sharing" is at the low rate, while the distributor "shares" at the higher rate.

The Federal Trade Commission has ruled "double-billing" to be fraudulent on the part of all involved.

The practice was widespread at one time, especially in media other than newspaper, but the FTC rule and a new genre of management has greatly diminished the questionable, and now illegal practice.

Some argue that since co-op is usually based on purchases, the find belongs to the local dealer anyway. But in the face of the FTC ruling, such arguments are moot at best.

Do you serve spaghetti the same old way all the time, topped with meatballs and a wash in tomato sauce? There are so many other flavorful ways to serve spaghetti—and serve the purpose of beating the budget blues as well.

My favorite of favorites is Shrimp Spaghetti...luscious, fresh, shelled shrimp in olive oil and parsley and garlic, a recipe I gave some time ago. But what's wrong with a seafood sauce of that good old standby of Sunday suppers and school lunches—tuna? Why not serve think it's a bit dry, add a little more butter or a little oil or white wine.

To serve, toss the spaghetti with the sauce, sprinkle with the cheese. (Four servings).

There's no need to pay more for a can of solid pack or chunk tuna when you're going to flake it anyway. For this recipe, buy the usually cheaper flaked tuna.

We also like spaghetti with a robust tomato sauce further sparked with walnuts and stuffed olives—try it sometime. For four servings, saute a chopped rib of celery, along with a medium onion, also chopped, and a minced clove of garlic, in a couple of tablespoons of butter until transparent.

Add two cans of tomato sauce with mushrooms (or make your own tomato-mushroom sauce, as I prefer) along with a quarter cup of dry red wine, about a half-teaspoon of sugar, dashes of pepper and basil. Cover and cook for half an hour over low heat.

Gradually add the spaghetti to boiling water so that the water keeps on boiling. Cook, uncovered several minutes or until tender. Drain.

While you're waiting for that pot to boil, melt the butter or margarine in a saucepan, add the onion and saute till tender, then stir in the tuna, pimiento and parsley and cook till heated through. If you

Need for food increasing while farmlands disappear

It takes 1,000 years for one inch of topsoil to form under natural conditions. And it takes less than four years for erosion to destroy that inch.

Considering those facts, one doesn't have to be a mathematician to figure out that high rates of erosion can do devastating—and practically irreversible—damage to topsoil, the dark, rich layer of earth that can transform ordinary land into productive farmland.

Today, erosion is one of two major factors contributing to the disappearance of farmland across the United States, says a recent issue of National Wildlife magazine. The second factor is development—the conversion of farmland to non-farm uses.

The combined effect of these two trends—increasing erosion and development on U.S. farmland—is a problem with ominous implications for future generations, according to the bi-monthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

Thousands of acres of farmland are being lost at a time when the need for food around the world is on a sharp increase. "It's a vanishing act of such proportions that it's a wonder we as a nation haven't shown more concern," concludes the magazine.

If erosion throughout the United States were confined to one region, all of the topsoil from an area the size of the State of Rhode Island would be gone in less than three months, says National Wildlife.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, one third of the nation's cropland is currently eroding at an unacceptable rate. Losses range from one to more than 40 tons per acre per year.

In the Corn Belt, Delta states and the Appalachian states, more than a third of the cropland is eroding at rates exceeding 5 tons annually—well beyond the rates that can be replaced by mechanical, chemical and natural forces.

Ironically, technological advances have masked erosion's adverse impacts on farmland. As erosion diminishes the productivity of land, farmers boost yields with new technology, such as hybrid seeds, pesticides, more efficient equipment, chemical fertilizers and intensive tilling practices.

The innovations hide the losses that would have resulted had the stripped soil be left on its own.

In addition, says National Wildlife, erosion has not been concentrated in one area, where its impact could have been more easily assessed. Instead it has been spread over hundreds of millions of acres. When the damages became evident, the problem was already beginning to reach crisis proportions.

Complicating the effect of erosion is development, which takes its own bite out of the nation's farmland. Unfortunately, pressures for farmland conversion are most intense in regions with the most productive cropland—the Corn Belt and Sunshine states.

According to the magazine, development in the country's 100 best agricultural counties is twice the national rate. Farmland losses caused by development and erosion will total 3.2 million acres by the year 2000 in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Missouri if current trends continue.

Solutions to farmland losses—such as innovative land planning and an end to government support for policies and projects that erode away topsoil—are available, says National Wildlife. But because farmers

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Bishop Daniel Sonnes of the Waveland Ward said the public as well as church members are invited to hear over leased wire facilities the Sunday general session of the 152nd Semiannual General Conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Salt Lake City, Utah.

The session will be aired at the Picaune Chapel from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., Sonnes said.

"All priesthood holders are also reminded that the Saturday evening sessions will be heard at the Picaune Chapel from 8 to 10 p.m. that night," the bishop added.

The conference is being conducted in the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City Saturday and Sunday with general sessions both days at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

A general priesthood meeting is slated in the tabernacle at 7 p.m. Saturday.

nacle at 7 p.m. Saturday.

"In areas where the Sunday session is to be broadcast, local officials have the discretion to readjust meeting schedules to allow members to listen on the leased wire facilities as well as to radio, television of satellite transmissions of the conference sessions," the bishop explained.

Waveland Players schedule auditions

The Waveland Players are conducting tryouts Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue for a fall presentation of "Young Dracula," a spoof on the legendary horror classic.

The play, to be directed by Ted Stechmann, was written by Tim Kelly, with additional dialogue by Jeanne-Marie Bell. A large cast will include vampire, werewolf, several gypsies, residents of Transylvania and American tourists.

Eighteen speaking (and howling) parts are available for men and women ages 18 and up.

For information, call Stechmann at 467-4118.

UNOFFICIAL ASSISTANT—Mrs. Ouida Randolph, right, mother of Hancock County Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph, center, was sworn in Tuesday as 'honorary assistant superintendent' by Chancery Court Clerk E. Michael Necaise after her son was sworn in as superintendent by Circuit Clerk Henry Otis, left. Randolph was elected in a special runoff election Saturday to fill the unexpired term of former superintendent Billy Sills who was ousted after pleading guilty to felony embezzlement charges. Randolph emphasized Wednesday, "My mother definitely is not on the school system payroll." (Echo staff photo by Brent Macey)

Six-year-old struck by car

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A six-year-old student was struck by an automobile in Kilm Tuesday after he had earlier gotten off a school bus, according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Peterson reported, "Our investigation revealed that Stacey Herron, age six, had gotten off the school bus with two other children and crossed the road."

Bus driver Mrs. Betty Page, after the children crossed the road, turned off the signals and had turned down another street when she heard a noise," the sheriff continued.

"She then looked in her rear view mirror and saw the youth in the street."

"No charges have been filed against 15-year-old Michael Ruspoli of Kilm, driver of the vehicle which apparently struck the Herron child. The parents Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Herron, took their son to Hancock General for treatment of elbow injuries and he was later released," Peterson added.

Peterson said, "It was apparently an unavoidable accident, we have three witnesses."

Investigator Delbert Seay is still checking the incident with assistance from Deputy David Garcia.

The Herron child is a student at Hancock North Central Elementary School.

Ironically, Peterson four hours earlier issued a stern warning to motorists in reference to school buses and zones.

Sheriff warns school traffic law violators

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A stern warning was issued Tuesday by Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson to persons failing to obey traffic regulations in regards to school buses and school zones.

Peterson stated, "I have received numerous complaints from school bus drivers of motorists passing when buses are stopped with students getting on or off the buses."

"We are going to do whatever it takes to curtail this in addition to persons leaving the schools in a hurry flying around the buses. We have had complaints about adults as well as student drivers," Peterson continued.

The prime area of complaints are from Hancock North Central and Charles B. Murphy school in Pearl-ington.

Another area receiving attention from Peterson is the passing of school buses when they stop and signals are out for the loading and unloading of students.

"Persons seem to ignore the law of not passing a bus when it is stopped for the loading or unloading of students. This is happening mostly on Hwy. 603 and US-90, and the practice has to stop—I am now having deputies following the school buses in unmarked cars," Peterson emphasized.

Peterson added, "When a vehicle is following a school bus on US-90 and the bus pulls into the left lane to pickup or leave off students, motorists are violating state laws when they pass the bus, this goes for all highways and roads."

A spokesman for the Bay St. Louis Police Department reported there were not any complaints involving school buses, but added school crossings are well patrolled.

Waveland Chief of Police Donald Dorn reported, "We run radar especially in the morning and evenings on Waveland Avenue, St. Joseph Street and Nicholson Avenue. We hate to give a ticket for speeding when children are waiting for a bus, but do so when necessary."

Waveland and Bay St. Louis have traffic guards at many of the school crossings with both departments having extra officers patrolling at peak times.

Dorn allowed, "It would be a tragic thing for someone to injure or kill a child because they were running late and speeding to get to work on time."

All law officers urge motorists to be extremely careful when children are in the vicinity of the roads and highways.

First responder refresher course set at Jeff Davis

The Mississippi Gulf Coast Emergency Medical Services District is sponsoring a First Responder Course each Tuesday from 6 to 10 p.m. beginning Oct. 5 and continuing for 10 weeks.

The seminars will be held in Room D-9, Vo-Tech Building, Jackson County Campus, Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College in Pascagoula, according to Becky Farnham, MGCEMS project director.

David Freels, EMT-P, will be the instructor, assisted by Hollis Parish, EMT-I, and Phil Hawkshead, EMT-A.

First Responder training consists of 40 hours of advanced first aid and CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) for police, fire, rescue, industrial and volunteer personnel who would often be the first on the scene of an accident or disaster.

The EMS District will pay for the course for public safety agency and rescue personnel. There will be a charge of $1.75 for the textbook.

Registration will be held the first night of class in Room D-9.

REFRESHER

The first refresher course of EMT-intermediates and paramedics will be offered in Mississippi will be held Nov. 6, 7, 20, and 21 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Sponsored by the Mississippi Gulf Coast Emergency Medical Services District, the 48-hour course will be held in the Health Occupations Building on Jeff Davis Campus of Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College in Biloxi.

Registrations must be received at the district office, 1020 32nd Ave., Gulfport by Oct. 25.

Required Texts for the course are "Emergency Care in the Streets" and the accompanying workbook and the "ACLS Provider's Manual." These may be purchased at the college bookstore by those who do not already have them. The course is free to students in the MGCEMS District. Those from outside the district will be charged for handout materials.

Ladner charged in fire bombing

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A Bay St. Louis resident was freed on a $10,000 property bond after being arrested in connection with the fire bombing of a vehicle in Bay St. Louis, according to Brenda Anderson, auxiliary assistant chief of police.

Ms. Anderson said, "John E. Ladner, who was wanted in connection with the burning of a 1977 Cadillac turned himself into Police Chief Douglas Williams at the Bay St. Louis Police Department at 10 a.m. on Wednesday."

"The burning of the auto occurred at 1316 Old Spanish Trail, Bay St. Louis on Sept. 13 and Ladner was wanted for suspicion of arson," Anderson added.

He was booked at the Hancock County Jail and later released on a property bond, Anderson reported.

The case is being investigated by Williams, Bay Detectives Benjamin Palmer and James Clark with assistance from Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Ladner recently had been sought by the U.S. Border Patrol in connection with alleged transportation of illegal aliens into Hancock County.

Coast Episcopal schools offering Christmas greenery

The Parent Teacher Organization of Coast Episcopal Schools, along with the students and teachers, is taking orders for fresh Christmas greenery.

Manufacturer of the greenery products is Sherwood Forest Farms, Inc., in Chehalis, Wash.

The Christmas decorations to be sold for this fundraising activity are fresh berried English holly, Christmas evergreen home decorator kits, alpine Christmas wreaths, and western cedar garland.

The holly is packed in half-pound plastic bags and sells for $2.50.

Each do-it-yourself evergreen kit contains noble or silver tip fir, distinctive alpine variety; western cedar, lacy-fragrant; long needle pine; Ponderosa pine cones; snow cones; high quality red ribbon; green wire ties; and arrangement and instruction folder. Price of the kit is $4.75.

The alpine Christmas wreath comes with cones and ribbon for decorating and is about 20 inches in diameter.

The wreath sells for $8.50. The seven foot long, handmade, western cedar garland is priced at $6.75.

Those interested in placing an order should contact the day school in Bay St. Louis, 467-5125; the high school in Pass Christian, 452-9442; or Christmas Greens Chairperson Jean Hoke, 452-7058.

All orders and money must be in by Friday, Oct. 29, to guarantee order arrival before Christmas.

Council ok's $4.8 million budget

By BRENT MACEY

The Bay St. Louis City Council approved a $4.8 million budget for the city's 1983 fiscal year at a meeting Tuesday night and also agreed to settle a suit filed against the city by the owner of the former Star Theatre.

In terms of the budget, this year's incoming revenues are expected to be some $700,000 greater than last year's total revenues.

City Clerk Eddie Favre stated the major increases will be seen in the city's General and Utility Funds.

The utility department is budgeted some $2,010,500; some $485,500 more than was budgeted to that account last year.

Favre attributed the major part of that increase to a larger gas bill which citizens will be paying this year to offset a 23 percent natural gas rate hike by United Gas.

The General fund is budgeted to receive $1,380,500 this upcoming year, an increase of approximately $159,000.

Favre attributed that increase to additional sales taxes which the city will be receiving when the new shopping center on the corner of Dunbar Avenue and US-90 is completed.

Additional monies are also expected through an increase in revenue sharing monies and 'other miscellaneous items here and there' which Favre said are negligible in comparison to the sales tax increases.

Other budgeted areas include: Parks and Playgrounds, $36,000; City County Library Fund, $20,000; Sanitary Sewer System Fund, $38,424; Outdoor Recreation Fund, $34,698; Unemployment Compensation Fund, $22,619; Municipal Bond Fund, $174,369; Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District—Including the school district's Maintenance Fund, the Minimum Program, the School Bond Fund and the School Short Term Loan Fund—$1,032,996; Street Improvement Fund, $51,862; Industrial Revenue Bond Fund, $6,375; and Industrial Bond Fund, $18,980.

Of the total $4,811,697 which the city expects to receive this year, anticipated expenditures total $4,716,723, leaving the city with an estimated balance of $94,974.

In reference to the Star Theatre federal law suit filed by Kelvin Schulz in 1980, the council agreed to a settlement of $8,000.

Schulz had sued the city in 1980 after city police shut down the theatre in December of 1979 during a showing of 'Richard Pryor in Concert.'

The action occurred after Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett was informed that minors were being allowed to view the picture.

Schulz claimed his First Amendment right to freedom of speech had been violated and his reputation damaged.

Thus far the city has paid some $7,500 in legal fees. Final bills are expected to add an additional $3,500 Norman Breeland and the firm of Gex, Gex and Phillips.

Fire Prevention Week Special

With National Fire Prevention Week slated Oct. 4-9, the Mississippi Forestry Commission is offering advice to citizens in rural areas on how to reduce wildfire dangers to their health, homes and other property.

Although Mississippi does not usually have the kind of infernos California and other western states suffer periodically, the trend of developing housing in close to timbered areas does create greater forest fire potential, say officials of the state's forestry agency.

"More houses in and near the forests mean more people, and more people mean a greater potential for forest fires," says State Forester Sid Moss. He cites the situation in Harrison County, (North Gulfport and Biloxi) as good examples.

He outlined precautions homeowners in these areas can take to reduce the danger from wildfires:

Vegetative clearance: Under dry, windy conditions, dead grass, leaves and brush can burn intensely and rapidly, thus it should be cleared away from buildings.

To reduce structural exposure and to give firefighters a better chance of saving structures, maintain a fire break of at least 30 feet around all buildings. Make sure roofs are kept free of flammable materials such as pine needles, leaves and moss and that no portion of a tree or other vegetation is closer than 15 feet to the outlet of a stovepipe or chimney.

Solid-waste disposal: If open burning is permitted, use a cleared area at least 15 feet in diameter, utilizing a center area of no more than three feet in diameter for trash burning. Keep fire tools handy and do not burn on dry, windy days.

If you have a barrel or other incinerator, cover it with a non-burning mesh screen with openings of a half-inch or smaller.

Structures: Construction should certainly include fire-resistant roofing materials and exterior siding and otherwise meet building codes.

Protect with screening all openings such as roof, attic and under house, and use fire-resistant construction for projections such as balconies, porches, decks.

Water: Water mains for single-family homes should be at least one inch in diameter. Keep garden hose outlets operable, including protection from freezing. If your only water supply is from an electric pump, it is advisable to have a separate power line run directly to the pump motor.

Traffic: Provide a safe and sufficient access road to your property over which emergency vehicles and equipment can be moved. To help firefighters locate your house, post a nameplate or number identification at the entrance of your driveway or private road.

Basic firefighting tools: Home tools may help retard fire advance until firefighters arrive. Garden rakes, shovels, axes, a minimum of 100 feet of garden hose with adjustable nozzle and a ladder to reach the roof are among useful items.

Moss said Mississippi's normal high fire danger season is still about 4-5 weeks away, but it could come early if the weather stays very dry as the leaves begin to fall.

SOUTH AFRICA BELONGS TO US profiles the lives of black women struggling for survival under the rigid apartheid laws in South Africa. The documentary includes interviews with several black women including a migrant laborer's wife (top) and black women's movement leaders Fatima Meer (left) and Winnie Mandela (right). The show airs at 10 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 5, on ETV ch. 19.

Hancock board expels student

By BRENT MACEY

The Hancock County School Board Wednesday approved the expulsion of a Gulfview elementary student on recommendation of the school's principal.

The board action was taken in executive session after the youth's parents requested a private hearing.

The expulsion is effective through the current school year.

In other business, the board approved allowing Cafeteria Supervisor Rhea Scaffidi to attend a food service conference in Biloxi Oct. 22, 23, and 24 at a cost of $200.

Scaffidi said the conference is designed to improve the school food program for the 1982-83 year.

Hancock's history revealed to Retired Federal Employees

Special to the Sea Coast Echo
"History not only repeats itself — it also contradicts itself," Joe Pilet told her audience when she addressed the Buccaneer Chapter of National Association of Retired Employees Thursday at Gulfshore Baptist Assembly in Henderson Point.

To illustrate her point, Pilet said at the time the French were exploring the coast line Louis XIV was King of France and "some historians say the Bay of St. Louis was named in his honor."

But, he continued: "Other historians record that the Bay was discovered on the feast day of Sainted King Louis IX and the Bay and also the lands bordering it were named in his honor."

"I would suggest," she said, "that you pick whichever version you feel comfortable with. Personally, I prefer the name being in honor of the brave and sainted King Louis IX, and leave it to the great State of Louisiana to honor Louis XIV."

Giving another example of contradictions made by historians, Mrs. Pilet said there were several recorded differences about why Pass Christian was so named.

"The most popular version," she said, "was that in 1699 two Ladrone brothers named Christian and Marianne discovered the channel and the town Pass Christian was named in honor of one while the lighthouse marking the channel was named for Marianne."

Still another version holds the town was named for an early sailor and another says and I quote: "the town takes its name from the channel or pass which runs through the shallows and oyster reefs just south about 1,000 feet from the center of the town."

Holding up an oyster shell and mud ball Mrs. Pilet said: "Perhaps our local history should begin with the American Indians. Records show that d'Iberville and his younger brother, Bienville in the year 1699 met with and were defriended by these early Americans."

"These artifacts were taken from the Hancock County Clairborne site and were dated by archaeologist as being 4,000 years old."

"Notice the indentation made on the mud ball by a thumb imprint of some small Indian child whose task it was to roll mud balls for use in cooking."

"The balls were heated and placed in the cavity of animals in order that the meat might cook evenly."

Further evidence of Indian habitation, she said, were oyster and clam shell mounds located along the shores.

"These shells were later used to surface our streets and roads," she added. "Saw dust was also used to surface roads, it was said."

"Our Indian heritage begins with the name of our state," she stated.

"Mississippi is an Indian name with a rough translation meaning 'Father of Waters.' Throughout our state Indian names appear in identifying counties, rivers, bayous, and etc.," Pilet said, giving examples of Tunica, meaning "little people;" Noxubee, stinking water; Neshoba, wolf; Coahoma, red panther; Choctaw, separation; and Chickasaw, rebellion."

"And while we are dropping names," Pilet continued, "Hancock County was named for John Hancock, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and Harrison County was named in honor of William Henry Harrison, the ninth president of the United States."

Mississippi flew the flag of the United States for the first time in 1798 when it became a territory of a still young nation, Pilet said, explaining that the territorial capital was located first in Natchez.

"In 1817 the Mississippi Territory was divided into the State of Mississippi and the Alabama Territory," she said, adding, "At that time Mississippi was divided into 14 counties. Hancock was one of them. Later on Hancock County was divided into three counties: Hancock County having 465 square miles, Harrison County with 584 square miles formed in 1841, and Pearl River County with 828 square miles — named for the beautiful Pearl River."

"The middle of the Bay of St. Louis marks the boundary between Hancock and Harrison Counties and Henderson Point and Pass Christian Isles are the beginning of Harrison County when entered from the West and travelling East toward the towns of Pass Christian, Long Beach, Gulfport, etc.," the lecturer continued.

"Henderson Point was named for the colorful and interesting John Henderson who donated the land on which Trinity Church of Pass Christian stands together with the original acreage known as Live Oak Cemetery."

"He served as a Mississippi senator, was holder of a great deal of real estate, and had a son named Elliot," Pilet continued.

"Elliot married Fannie Hewes of Gulfport and when he died in 1913 all of the lands in his estate went to his wife's nephews, the Hewes Brothers of Gulfport. In 1925 the Hewes Brothers sold some of the property to a development company."

"The land was drained, subdivided and is now called Pass Christian Isles. John Henderson's land holding also included Beauvoir. Beauvoir is historically significant as the last home of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy."

"James Brown, a prosperous Madison County planter, bought the land from Henderson in 1848, and slaves from his plantation did most of the work in constructing the several buildings, however, skilled carpenters and decorators from New Orleans were brought in to do the finishing work."

"The estate was completed in 1852. Most of the timbers used in the construction were cut at Handsboro or on the estate, the cypress came from Back Bay swamps and the slate roof was imported from England," the speaker elaborated.

"James Brown and his family lived on the estate until 1873 when the property was sold to Mrs. Samuel W. Dorsey. It was Mrs. Dorsey who gave it the name 'Beauvoir,' meaning 'beautiful view.'"

"In 1877 Jefferson Davis, age 69, returned to Mississippi. Mrs. Dorsey invited the Davis family to visit her at Beauvoir. Soon Davis rented the East Cottage and started writing The Rise and Fall of the Confederate Government. (Mrs. Davis and daughter, Winnie assisted with secretarial work).

"In 1879 President Davis arranged to buy the estate from Mrs. Dorsey and made a down payment. Six months later Mrs. Dorsey died. It was then that Davis learned she had willed all she possessed to him, including not only Beauvoir but five plantations."

"At that time there were vineyards and orange groves on the estate and Beauvoir wine was said to be of excellent quality. When President Jefferson Davis died in 1889, through is will, the property went to his favorite daughter, Winnie, and she died in 1898 leaving the property to Mrs. Davis who was then old and in failing health and unable to properly maintain it."

"She decided to sell, but refused an offer of $9,000 because the offer came from those wishing to establish a hotel. The Sons of the Confederate Veterans bought the property for $10,000 with certain provisions made by Mrs. Davis: (1) The estate should be turned into a shrine in memory of her husband; (2) it should be used as a home for ex-Confederate soldiers, sailors, their wives and widows as long as a need existed."

"Beauvoir served as the Confederate Home until 1956. 800 of the old soldiers are buried in the rear of the estate. Now an outstanding tourist attraction, Beauvoir Shrine fronts the Gulf some 1,040 feet, has been beautifully restored and furnished with authentic pieces — most of which were in use while the Davis family lived there."

"Every inch of our Golden Gulf Coast holds a fascinating story," Pilet said, mentioning the Dixie White House, was once a beautiful mansion in which President Wilson spent three weeks, arriving Christmas Day, 1913."

At that time Western Union telegraph offices set up ten operators in the newly opened Mexican Gulf Hotel to handle presidential affairs, the speaker noted. "Pass Christian — news of the nation!"

Gulf Park College with its famous and magnificent live oak was mentioned, as were the islands including Ship and Cat — named by Bienville.

Pilet said: "Captain Joseph T. Jones was Godfather and benefactor — builder of Gulfport. She then gave a brief account of what Captain Jones did: 'He was born in Philadelphia, Pa. on June 11, 1842 and at the age of 19 enlisted serving three years in the Union Army. He was wounded in both feet in the Battle of Cold Harbor — wounds from which he never completely recovered.'

After his discharge he returned to Philadelphia and began drilling for oil. He drilled 13 dry holes. Crippled, discouraged and almost broke — he had luck with the 14th try and eventually at Bradford Oil Fields there were some 500 highly productive wells."

"Gulfport was incorporated in 1899. In 1902 Captain Jones, then 60 years of age, came to Gulfport to assume charge of the Gulf and Ship Island railroad."

It was then that Gulfport began to grow. The first ship came in to dock! Captain Jones paid $1,000 to the ship's captain and gave him a guarantee against any and all damages done to the ship in docking."

Captain Jones largely financed the 1905 trolley line that served the Mississippi Gulf Coast."

The Harbor and channel of Gulfport, built by Captain Jones at a cost of $1,603,594 was turned over to the Federal Government at a price of $150,000."

Gulfport has honored the memory of Captain Jones with a monument facing the water front and a public park."

"No history of the Hancock-Harrison County area could be complete," said Pilet, "without further mention of the Ladner family. To begin with there are four different ways of spelling the name: Le Adner, Ladner and Ladnier also Ladner."

The late J.H. Lang wrote Historical Sketches of Har-ison County and reports: "In the early part of the 70's came, on board a colonial ship, Dr. Christian Ladner, a German doctor, sent a doctor for the colonies, with his four sons' Christian, Louis, Jacques, and Nicholas. Jacques Ladner married and settled in Biloxi."

"Captain Flood appointed a Jacques LeAdner at Biloxi as Justice of the Peace."

"Captain Flood's report is enlightening and gives us a good idea of the early settlements along the Mississippi Gulf Coast. Acting with authority and by command of Governor C.C. Clairborne of Louisiana, Captain William Flood visited this section, taking charge of it in the name of the United States and on his return he reported as follows: 'Sir, in compliance with your instructions to me dated New Orleans, January 5, 1811, I embarked on board the Felucca Alligator, and proceeded to Simeon Favre's on the eastern bank of Pearl River and delivered him his commission as Justice of the Peace in and for the Parish of Viloxi, (an original spelling) a copy of the civil code of the territory and the law and different acts of the legislature."

"From Pearl River I proceeded to the Bay of St. Louis and Pass of Christian, where I hoisted the flag of the United States on 9th January, 1811 at 2 a.m. filled out a commission as Justice of Peace in and for the Parish of Viloxi, for Philip Saucier, delivered him a copy of the civil code of the territory, with the laws and different acts of the legislature."

"From the Bay of St. Louis and Pass of Christian, I went on to the Bay of Viloxi, where I filled out a commission of Justice of the Peace in and for the Parish of Viloxi with the name of Jacques L'Adner, who can neither read or write, nor can any inhabitant of the Bay of Viloxi..." Biloxi was first spelled with a V, Pilet said and added: "I have no record of when or why the change of spelling from Viloxi to Biloxi took place."

In concluding her remarks, Pilet said Harrison County was once acclaimed the healthiest county in the United States."

Weather, normally mild, had unusual occurrences in March 5, 1865 with sleet and snow storms and again March 18, 1892 with snow doing great damage to vegetation and in 1930 Feb. 12 with 10 degrees, sleet and snow at 9 a.m., Feb. 13, a drop to 4 degrees above zero at 7:30 a.m. and snow on Feb. 14. By Feb. 15 temperature rose to 39 degrees with heavy rain, gale and fog."

Pilet said she was delighted to know that the Retired Federal Employees showed interest in the history of the area, and as co-ordinator of the City-County Public Library System of Hancock County invited the group to visit the library on US-90 in Bay St. Louis where she said there is a modest shelf devoted to Mississippi history with some of its poetical works, novels, maps, pictures, etc."

"Come on down," she said: "You'll be welcomed and you'll love it."

WHAT ABOUT THE RIGHTS OF VICTIMS?

When a thief breaks into your home and robs you or destroys your property, you suffer a real loss.

When he's caught and convicted, the criminal may be sent to jail to pay his debt to society. But what about his debt to you?

Who pays to fix your house? Who pays to replace your valuables?

It just doesn't seem fair that you or your insurance company should have to pay. Especially when the guilty person has already been caught and convicted.

Make The Criminals Pay.

Why not make the convicted criminal pay for the damage he did?

You can. That's what victim restitution is all about. It's a law recently passed by the Mississippi Legislature.

But long before it became part of the law, James Thomas was working to make victim restitution a vital part of our criminal justice system.

They'll Think Twice Before They Act.

"Equal protection under the law is the foundation of our democracy. But sometimes it seems like criminals are more equal than their victims."

"I feel that a criminal should have to pay for any damage he's caused his victims. As Assistant District Attorney, I've routinely recommended that restitution be made a part of the sentencing of criminals."

"As Judge, I'll administer justice fairly, firmly and impartially. So criminals will think twice before they act."

He Has The Experience We Need.

James Thomas has spent his career in the judicial system of Harrison, Hancock and Stone Counties.

He grew up in South Mississippi, the son of Christine Thomas and the late L. E. "Tommy" Thomas of Gulfport.

After graduating from U.S.M., he earned a law degree from Ole Miss and went to work as a lawyer in private practice.

Now he lives in Biloxi with his wife Sue, a Biloxi schoolteacher, and their 3-year-old daughter Tiffany.

He's In Touch With The People.

As Assistant District Attorney, he's worked for all the people in Harrison, Hancock and Stone Counties for nearly a decade.

He's prosecuted hundreds of cases in the very courtroom he'll preside over as judge.

He knows the law. He knows how our Circuit Court works. And he's in touch with the people he serves.

On November 2nd, let's elect James Thomas, Circuit Court Judge.

CURRY BREAKS LOOSE—Hancock North Central halfback Lydell Curry (32) takes a handoff from Hawk quarterback Mark Santalla (14) and breaks away from a host of defending linemen. Santalla was cited by HNC head coach Irvin Favre for his outstanding performance in the Hawks' 21-12 victory over Pass Christian Friday. Curry carried 17 times against the Pirates for 122 yards, bringing his season rushing total to almost 600 yards in four games. The Hawks will be engaged in a crucial conference contest against East Central in Hurley this week, with kickoff at 7:30 p.m. Friday. (Echo staff photo by Edgar Perez)

Hawks facing 'must win' contest against East Central

By EDGAR PEREZ
Hancock North Central's Hawks this week are facing a crucial conference test in Hurley against East Central.

The Hawks' conference record stands at two wins and one loss, putting the birds on a par with Pearl River Central and Vancleave who are also at 2-1 in the league.

Bay High goes into its conference encounter with St. Stanislaus Friday with a 3-1 conference total.

East Central, Deep South Conference member and District 8A school, holds a 0-1 conference mark with a 16-7 loss to Vancleave.

play a lot of real good ball clubs and it's difficult to determine just how good they really are," said Hawk mentor Irvin Favre.

"We know they play a good defensive game," Favre added.

"This will be a must game for us Friday if we are going to stay alive in the conference," the coach explained.

"We just hope our kids will rise to the occasion and can do the job," Favre continued.

"We played our best ball game all year last week against the Pirates," the coach reported.

Favre cited quarterback Mark Santalla for an outstanding effort on both defense and offense.

"Mark completed a 50-yard touchdown pass, ran in a fumble for a touchdown, and passed to Cedric Goff for a two-point conversion," he noted.

"Even though last week's victory was the result of a team effort, we have to credit Dennis Lacoste for his defensive work in the first half and Lydell Curry for his rushing totals," the coach continued.

Curry gained 122 yards on 17 carries against the Pirates, bringing his season total to almost 600 yards.

"If our passing game would come around a little better we would be a strong contender in this conference race," Favre stressed.

"Mark was throwing stronger and straighter against the Pass than he has all year."

"We're definitely going to be shooting for a win Friday night in Hurley," Favre promised.

Kickoff is a 7:30 p.m. in the East Central Stadium which is located directly behind the high school.

The most direct route to the school includes a left turn off I-10 at Hwy. 63 in Pascagoula, north to Wade and right at Wade to Hurley.

Favre advises fans to allow at least one hour driving time from Hancock County.

Lumpkin reshuffling Pirate starters for Stone contest

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Pass Christian High School football team starters are again being shuffled to different positions for the Pirates' Friday night contest.

The Pass will battle the Stone County High School Tomcats in the game slated to begin at 7:30 p.m. at Francis S. McDonald Stadium on North Street in Pass Christian.

Pirate Head Coach Bob Lumpkin Tuesday morning stated, "We're going to try to put together a combination to win—something that will work."

The Pirate head coach would not reveal who would be included in the player position changes.

Pass Christian so far has a winless 1982 season.

Last week Lumpkin shuffled player positions which resulted in the Pirates scoring the most points in a single game this season.

The Pirates were defeated Friday night by the Hancock North Central High School Hawks, 21-12.

Lumpkin reported Stone physically is one of the best teams in the Deep South Conference even though the Tomcats are 2-2 this season.

He said Stone executes a variety of plays well and has one of the quickest backs in the conference.

Lumpkin added Stone runs an effective Wing-T formation.

The Pirate mentor said the Tomcats in previous games this season shut out Pearl River Central High School 26-0 and beat Hancock 28-2.

He noted Bay Senior High School beat Stone 7-0 and George County High School, the best team in the conference, also defeated the Tomcats this season.

In addition to shifting players Lumpkin reported he is training the Pirates to block and tackle more effectively.

"We haven't really hit anybody hard this season. I hope this is because we have young players," the coach stated.

Guerrero victorious in boxing classic

By BRENT MACEY

Bay-Kiln-Waveland Boxing Club's Tony Guerrero took home first place honors at the Coors-Pepsi Boxing Classic conducted in the Rice Pavilion in Gulfport last weekend.

The 11-year-old Waveland resident, fighting in the 80 pound junior division, defeated Mike Brew of the Avondale Boxing Club on Saturday night, knocking Brew down once in the second round and again in the third round, to win by a unanimous decision and advance to the finals Sunday.

His teammate Cory Johnston, 10, also continued to the finals Sunday following his victory Saturday over Danny Kilpatrick of Saucier.

As a result of the victories, both boxers faced each other Saturday in the finals with Guerrero winning by decision after three rounds.

Johnston took home second place trophy.

Also earning a second place trophy for the B-K-W was Timmy Yarborough, 11, of Bay St. Louis, fighting in the 75 pound junior division.

Yarborough defeated Shane Taylor of Mobile Saturday night but was defeated in the finals Sunday by Roy Stevens who was fighting unattached.

In other action at the boxing classic, two other Hancock County boxers, fighting for the Gulfport Boxing Club, took home second place trophies.

They include, Wayne Karl of Waveland fighting in the 85 pound intermediate division.

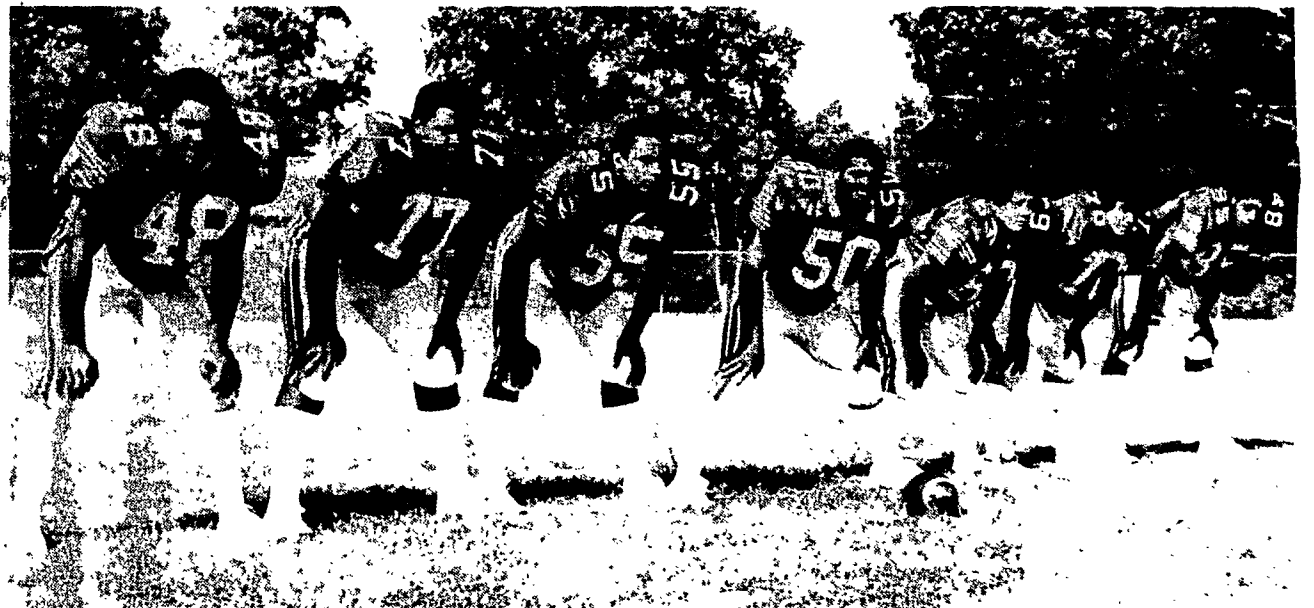

Karl faced Michael Babeaux of Avondale Saturday and won after the referee stopped the fight 10 seconds into the first round.

In his second fight of the day, Karl defeated Sean Stiglet of The Rebel Boxing Club before the first bell.

However, in finals action Sunday, Jamie Chermamie of Cutoff, La. stopped Karl from claiming the title by winning by a close split decision.

Other Hancock boxers who competed in the tournament included David Bennett of Pearlinton, fighting in the 112 pound class, who was defeated in his first fight Saturday by Tyrone Smith of Pensacola Fla.

Deer, squirrel, rabbit seasons open Saturday

This upcoming weekend will be one of the biggest of the fall and winter hunting period for Mississippi hunters. Three major hunting seasons will open, sending thousands of state shooters to the woods.

Deer season in the form of bowhunting gets underway statewide Saturday, Oct. 2. This first archery season will extend through Oct. 27, then resume Oct. 29 and end Nov. 12. The final archery hunting will take place Jan. 16-31.

Department of Wildlife Conservation officials say that bowhunters are restricted to the use of longbows only. Dogs, crossbows, sidearms and all firearms are prohibited while hunting deer during archery seasons.

Bowhunters will be permitted to take one adult buck per day and one antlerless deer per day, but not more than two antlerless deer per season. Wildlife officials define a legal buck as one with visible antlers of hardened, boney material having broken naturally through the skin.

Latest figures from the conservation department suggest that there are some 36,000 archers who may take advantage of the state's three bow seasons. If the season goes like last year bowhunters should take almost 15,000 white-tailed deer. The total deer harvest last year by hunters of all types was some 211,000 animals.

Squirrel hunters in Zone I will also be in the woods come Oct. 2. Zone I is that portion of the state north of US Hwy. 82. Rated the second most popular shooting sport in Mississippi, squirrel hunting is enjoyed by about 155,000 hunters. Information from a recent mail survey of state hunters shows that some 2.5 million squirrels were taken last year. The daily bag limit on squirrels is eight and the possession limit is 16.

Also opening Saturday, Oct. 2 is rabbit season. Pursued by some 107,000 shooters each year, rabbits are one of the most popular and plentiful of Mississippi's small game resources.

The daily bag limit on rabbits is eight and the possession limit is 16. The rabbit season will continue through Feb. 28.

Wildlife conservation enforcement officials are cautioning hunters to have a valid state hunting license on their person and signed before going deer, squirrel, or rabbit hunting. Deer hunters during this special archery season must have the additional archer/primitive weapons license. They say that the shooting hours for each of these game species is one-half hour before sunrise until one-half hour after sunset.

"According to the law the basic minimum fine for violating any game law is $25," explained enforcement chief Philip Strong. "But of course the fine is imposed by the judge, and it can get higher if the offense is severe enough."

"It's sad to say but each year hunters are issued citations because they didn't pay attention to the hunting rules and regulations issued by our department," Strong said. "If someone is going to hunt on a state wildlife management area they need to get the regulations for that area and study them, because the rules are not the same for all areas."

OCTOBER HUNTING CALENDAR

Oct. 2 Deer/archery opens; squirrel (Zone I) opens; rabbit opens.

Oct. 3 First dove season closes.

Oct. 16 Second dove season opens; squirrel (Zone II) opens.

Oct. 23 Rail and gallinule hunting opens.

Oct. 27 Deer/archery closes.

Oct. 29 Second deer/archery opens.

Oct. 30 Squirrel (Zone III) opens.

BOWHUNTER RENDEZVOUS — OCTOBER 8, 9, & 10, 1982.

The Hunter Education Division of the Department of Wildlife Conservation and Bear Archery Company are sponsoring a Bowhunter Rendezvous at Noxubee National Wildlife Refuge. The workshop is scheduled for Oct. 8, 9, & 10, 1982 and will be conducted at the refuge headquarters.

Subjects to be covered are: equipment setup and tuning, tracking and shot placement, bowhunting techniques, tree stand and bowhunting safety and field dressing and caping deer. Deer films will be shown each night, and deer hunts are planned morning and evening. Participants will be required to bring their own camping equipment and supplies. On Oct. 9, Saturday, we will have a catered supper. The cost of this meal will be $3.00 which may be paid upon arrival. Participants will be required to bring their own sleeping bags. HUNTING—Page 2A

Bay High, Stanislaus to clash

By BRENT MACEY

The Bay High School football team will travel to the St. Stanislaus stadium this week to face a cross-town rival in a game which may be packed with surprises.

Tiger Head Coach Snuffy Smith is not taking the game lightly although a winless St. Stanislaus is considered the underdog by far.

"They (St. Stanislaus) are a good 0-4 football team," Smith said.

"I know there's no such thing as a fine 0-4 team but they are a good team."

"I've been watching tapes of their games and it's hard to believe they've got the season record they have," he said.

"People might think that we've got an easy game ahead of us," Smith said about the Tigers who are tied for the Deep South Conference lead with a 3-1 record.

"But with their record, it complicates the game for us," Smith explained that he has no idea what to expect from St. Stanislaus other than some sort of game-plan change.

"With our 3-1 record they know we're not going to be making any changes. We're going to be playing the same type of game we've played all season and we'll be taking the ball straight at them," he said.

"But when you're losing you're going to be making changes and I'm sure they will. It puts us at a big disadvantage because we don't know what to expect."

Smith noted his team is in good health, with no injuries as of Tuesday.

Stanislaus is suffering from two starting players out on the injury list, but Head Coach Vernon Powell is still hoping for an upset.

Powell noted the contest will be a cross town rivalry and 'as far as a motivation goes both teams are going to be up."

"I think the team that makes the least number of mistakes will come out on top," he said.

So far this season the Rock-A-Chaws 'have done a good job not making the big mistakes' like allowing the long run or long yardage passing gain, he noted.

Athletic performance improvement eyed on ESPN

ESPN, Hancock Community Cable's channel 3, will present two new half-hour programs in October that are being produced for the network by outside sources.

Both programs will be telecast generally late Saturday mornings with additional airings scheduled throughout the week.

Future Sport, produced for ESPN by the advertising agency Doyle Dane Bernbach, will premiere Saturday, Oct. 2 at 10 a.m.

The telecasts will be hosted and co-produced by tennis personality Vic Braden and will scientifically explore athletic performance.

The programs, filmed at the Coto Research Center in Trabuco Canyon, Calif., will present three-dimensional computer tracking and high-speed photography to help athletes improve their game.

Appearing on the first show will be San Diego Chargers place kicker Rolf Benirschke and four-time Olympic gold medalist in the discus Al Oerter. Weekly features will be hosted by runner Frank Shorter, U.S. Olympic team consulting biochemist Dr. Gideon Ariel and nutritionist Dr.

Charles Kuntzelman.

The package is developed and produced by Storytellers and Millsport, both subsidiaries of DDB. The agency-sponsored series is the first of its kind on ESPN.

"Ski School" series on alpine and cross country skiing titled "Ski School" will air this fall and winter on ESPN, premiering Oct. 6 at 5 p.m. The series is aimed at the recreational skier and is being provided to ESPN by Cavaretti Communications, Inc.

The programs employ the "visual implantation" method of teaching that utilizes a process of mental picturing that enables the viewer to feel himself into the action. The programs include both instructional and demonstration segments.

The first show is titled "The Mountain Awakes" and will be followed by four other editions on alpine skiing that were filmed last winter at scenic Killington, Vermont. Five cross country programs, which received an Emmy nomination in the limited series category when they aired on PBS, will round out the series.

Cable network schedules Saturday night fights

Two former world champions currently ranked number one in their division and a show with a decided 1976 Olympics flavor will be featured on ESPN's boxing series, "Saturday Night at the Fights," Oct. 2, 9, and 16.

ESPN is carried on Hancock Community Cable's Channel 3.

Former WBA light heavyweight champion Eddie Mustafa Muhammad, currently ranked number one by the WBA, will face the WBC's number one contender, Lottu Mwale, in a 12-round fight promoted by Murad Muhammad Oct. 2 from the Showboat Hotel in Las Vegas.

Either WBC champion Dwight Braxton or WBA champion Michael Spinks would have to face the winner of Muhammad-Mwale in his next mandatory defense.

On Oct. 9, again from the Showboat, former WBC junior lightweight champion Cornelius Boza-Edwards (now ranked number one by the WBC) will face Blaine Dickson in a 10-round fight promoted by Mickey Duff.

Clint Jackson, captain of the 1976 United States Olympic boxing team, will face Marvin Hagler's half-brother, Robbie Simms, in a 10-round junior middleweight bout promoted by Bob Arum Oct. 16 from the Golden Nugget in Atlantic City. Also on that card will be a 10-round lightweight bout between 1976 Olympic gold medalist Howard Davis and Cocoa Sanchez.

Mustafa Muhammad (40-8, 33 KOs, Brooklyn, N.Y.) won the WBA light heavyweight title in March 1980 over Marvin Johnson. After two successful defenses, he lost the title to current champion Spinks in a 15-round decision. Mwale (24-1, 19 KOs, Zambia, Africa) is the Commonwealth and African light heavyweight champion. His only loss has been to then-WBC champion Matthew Saad Muhammad.

Boza-Edwards (35-3, 27 KOs, Uganda) defeated current WBC champion Rafael "Bozooka" Limon in 1981 for the title, but lost it later in the year to Rolando Navarrete (Limon later won it back from Navarrete). Dickson (16-6-1, 6 KOs, El Monte, Ca.) has gone the distance in losses to Navarrete and Hector Comacho.

Jackson (18-2, 15 KOs, Nashville, Tenn.) is rated number 10 in the middleweight division by the WBA. Simms' (14-1, 11 KOs, Brockton, Mass.) only loss has been a decision in a battle with Bobby Czyz. Both Jackson and Simms are not afraid to mix it up; ESPN's boxing play-by-play broadcaster, Sal Marchiano feels this bout will be a "war." Davis, making a comeback after a prolonged absence, is shooting for a title bout with Ray Mancini.

"The response we have received on this series has been very positive," said ESPN Vice President, Programming Robert M. Gutkowski. "With the top quality of these upcoming bouts, I feel our viewers will continue to watch 'Saturday Night at the Fights'."

Marchiano and Al Bernstein call the action for the series, which is produced by Ted Drake. ESPN currently reaches over 18 million homes nationwide.

Pilot proficiency competition slated

Local flyers will have an opportunity to test their basic flying skills at Gulfport-Biloxi Regional Airport on Saturday, Oct. 23.

A local competition for the United States Proficiency Flight Team will be held at Miller Wills Aviation.

This internationally recognized program engages general aviation pilots in competitive precision flying using single engine light airplanes and is measured in three areas: (1) flight planning (2) navigation by pilotage and (3) landings with power on and off to a precise point on the runway.

The top two scorers from this local meet are eligible to compete in the regionals at Jekyll Island, Ga. on April 29. The top five regional winners can compete in the nationals at Carbondale, Ill. on June 1.

The four national winners will constitute the US team and will receive an all expense paid trip to Skien, Norway for the world championships on August 1.

Tomahawk aircraft provided by Piper Aircraft Corporation will be flown in the world competition and during team practice under nationally known coach Tom Young of South Illinois University.

This Olympic type sporting event is sanctioned by the Federation Aeronautic International (FAI) through the National Aeronautic Association (NAA).

The Ninety-Nines, Inc., an organization of women pilots, legally acquired operational rights for the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association in November 1981.

All licensed pilots who are U.S. citizens and who have logged at least 100 flying hours are eligible to compete in this safety oriented competition.

This is the only event that will be held in Mississippi and surrounding areas.

Janet Green, who is the immediate past president of the 99s and manager of this event, can be contacted at 3252 Bienville Blvd., Ocean Springs, 39564; phone 1-875-0165, or further information.

Meranto, Senner Henry star in PRC romp over Jones Bobcats

The jinx is over. The Pearl River College Wildcats defeated Jones Junior College Bobcats 28-16 in Poplarville Saturday night.

After five years of close calls and almost wins the Wildcats handed the Jones crew a solid junior college whipping.

"We set the tempo of the game," said a beaming J. C. Arban, the Wildcats' head coach. "We hit hard and our execution was the best in a long time."

The win put the Wildcats with a 3-1 overall mark and a 2-0 ledger in the South Division. Jones, who entered the contest undefeated and ranked eleventh in the nation dropped to 3-1 and 1-1 in the division.

Pearl River and Gulf Coast are now tied for the first place in the South Division, with Jones and Gulf Coast battling this week at Jones.

A lot of people had been making fun of our wishbone offense this year but I think we showed those folks something tonight," Arban said. "We executed well both offensively and defensively and I feel like the better team won out there."

The wishbone which had taken so much heat through the first three games of the season, ground out 292 yards rushing against a ferocious Jones defense.

Arban never doubted the run-oriented concept and never abandoned it either.

We hadn't been getting the yardage output we had hoped for but we had the right people to make it work," he said.

When you put in a complicated offense like that, it takes a while to establish some consistency with it and hopefully we've reached that point now."

Cole's Bobcats won the total yardage war 401-374 but that was small consolation to the veteran Jones skipper. "We were able to move the game well all night, we just didn't stop them," he commented.

I think it boiled down to who was best prepared. And from the looks of things, I'd say they were."

Halback Lloyd Henry paced the Wildcats rushing attack with a game high 102 yards on 11 carries, including a nifty 57-yard touchdown sprint. Fullback Scott Senner followed with 68 yards on 13 carries and he also punted four times for a brilliant 49.5 average.

A majority of the Bobcat offense came through the airways where quarterbacks Reid Bush and David Hooper completed 19 of 35 passes for 251 yards. Pearl River never trailed in the contest and scored the game's initial touchdown late in the first quarter when Senner bulled over from a yard out at the 6:02 mark. Tony Smith's PAT made it 7-0.

Five minutes later, the Wildcats put together their shortest drive on the evening as Henry swept left end on second down from his own 43 and didn't stop until he'd reached paydirt. Again Smith converted the PAT.

Jones got one of the scores back early in the second stanza after recovering a Pearl River fumble at the Wildcat 33. Six plays later, Bush hooked up with Chip Geiger on a seven-yard touchdown pass with 9:12 left in the quarter.

But the hosts refused to allow Jones' momentum to build as they took the ensuing kickoff and marched 66 yards in 12 plays to rally again. Henry Martin got the touchdown on a majestic one-hand grab of a deflected, Bobby Devaughn pass of 20 yards. After Tony Smith added the PAT, Pearl River took a 21-7 lead into the dressing room at halftime.

The closest Jones got was late in the third period after notching a safety and a 40-yard scoring strike from Hopper to Lonnie Way. With only 33 seconds left in the third period, Pearl River's lead had been chiseled down to 21-16.

But midway through the fourth quarter, safety Donald Williams came up with the defensive gem of the game, intercepting a Hopper aerial at the Jones 44. Twelve plays later, Pearl River iced the contest as reserve quarterback Chuck Bounds plunged over from a yard out with 5:02 on the clock.

SCOTT SENNER

Jones was somewhat successful in gaining yardage down the stretch but the Cats were also tearing off at the line of scrimmage, realizing their opponents had to throw to catch up.

Thus sacks and interceptions also resulted.

"We'll enjoy this one for a few days and then get back to the world," added Arban. "There is still a lot of football left to be played."

PRC's coaching staff decided to give the "Player of the Week" award to all 65 squad members after the Saturday night victory.

"We watched the Jones film several times last night," Arban said Monday morning. "Shucks, everyone played great. The offense, the defense, special teams...even the fellows on the bench added to the win. It was a team effort."

The Wildcats ended a five year jinx against its nemesis from Ellisville, and in doing so, kept pace with undefeated Gulf Coast in the tough South Division race. PRC and Gulf Coast have 2-0 marks in the South with Jones dropping to 1-1.

"We had many spectacular efforts," Arban said. "We covered and recovered well." Arban said he was extremely pleased with his wishbone offense. "I think we are finally getting everything down pat," Arban said.

The PRC offense did exactly what Arban wanted it to do.

LLOYD HENRY

The Cats rushed for 309 yards with Lloyd Henry getting 102 and 11 carries. Fullbacks Scott Senner and Glen Meranto picked up 68 and 51 yards and tailback Ed Holt managed a hard 37 yards. PRC quarterbacks threw the ball 11 times completing five for another 82 yards.

All night long the PRC offensive line opened gaping holes for the PRC backs. "I'm pleased with how they moved off the football and hit those big Bobcats," said Wayne Jones, the assistant in charge of the linemen.

Herbert Morris, the PRC assistant in charge of the receivers and defensive secondary was just as complimentary of his groups. "We bent a little at times," Morris said. "But, we came up with the big interceptions and big plays when we had to."

The PRC defense was led by linebacker Tommy Hillman; defensive end Henry Martin, tackles Mike Gallo and Terry Stockstill, defensive backs, DeNeal McLemore, Don Williams and Glen Meranto. The list could go on and on.

The Wildcats will entertain the Coahoma Tigers Saturday in the Dobe Holden Stadium. The Wildcats have scored 105 points while allowing only 7 during the past two outings.

"We've had a pretty easy time the last two years," Arban said. "But this year may be a little different." The Coahoma Team has not won a ballgame this season, but they have been much more aggressive on defense and came close to etching a win several times.

"We can't afford to have a let down," the PRC coach said. "We'll have to play a solid ballgame against the Tigers." Captains for this week will be Bobby DeVaughn, Melvin McCurley and Tony Smith. Gametime is 7:30 p.m.

MSU BASKETBALL
Having its own increase in home attendance last winter, Mississippi State helped the Southeastern Conference rank second nationally in home attendance figures released recently by the NCAA for basketball.

The SEC averaged 10,951 fans per home contest to finish just behind the Big Ten, which had an average draw of 11,810. In all, the Big 10 attracted 1,688,834 fans for 143 home dates but dropped by 216 spectators per game from its 1980-81 figures.

On the other hand, the SEC increased its average attendance by 296 per tilt to 1,522,173 for 139 home battles. Mississippi State raised its attendance from 48,214 at home in 1980-81 to 52,907 in 1981-82 in spite of playing several games during the university holiday or semester examination periods in Humphrey Coliseum.

State's attendance ballooned with a 9,155-paid sellout against Mississippi here, and the Bulldogs expect a rise in the 1982-83 figures.

The season opener occurs on Monday, Nov. 29, against Southern Mississippi after the Bulldogs face Marathon Oil Co. on Tuesday, Nov. 16, in an exhibition fracas.

Coach Bob Boyd's crew plays a slate of 13 home games, excluding the match with Marathon Oil Co., and the non-televized Saturday home games will be contested at 4:00 p.m. for the first time since the 1974-75 campaign when State played several Saturday afternoon contests.

Bay Jr. High boasts undefeated season

The Bay Junior High School football team is boasting an undefeated 4-0 season record this year.

The team will be facing St. Stanislaus tonight at 7 p.m., hoping to increase that record to 5-0.

The school's first outing this year came against Stone County where ninth grader Willie Lewis had an outstanding game scoring three touchdowns. Teammates Jeffery Smith, Matt Fairconnetue, and Jeffery Crawford each added one TD.

In the second game of the season, the Tigers romped over Pass Christian Junior Varsity by a score of 20-0. Jessie Parker scored two of the Tiger touchdowns while Smith scored the third.

In the third contest against Pearl River Central, Bay High continued its winning streak by downing their Blue Devil opponents 14-12.

Willie Lewis scored two of the Tigers' goals with Stace McRaney kicking the PATs in that game.

The Tigers have 35 athletes on their squad this year and are expected to provide relief to the senior high next year which has suffered from lack of depth for the past several years.

Seventeen of the junior high athletes are returning from last year.

BJH's starting offensive unit consists of J.J. Roberts, center; Trace McRaney and Patrick Whavers, guards; Stace McRaney and Danny Carter, tackles; Todd Mannion, tight end; Matt Fairconnetue, split end; Doug Burge, wingback; Willie Lewis, fullback; Jessie Parker, running back; and Jeffery Smith, quarterback.

On defense, the starting line includes Joseph Summers, nose guard; Orlan Craft and Stace McRaney, defensive tackles; Trace McRaney, defensive end; J.J. Roberts, defensive end; Willie Lewis and Jeffery Crawford, line backers; Doug Burge, strong safety; Dennis Dear and Jessie Parker, corner backs, and Matt Fairconnetue, free safety.

Physical Fitness: Profile Of Youth

American youngsters are not as fit as they should be. That's the verdict of one recent physical fitness study, which reveals that only 43 percent of young people in the United States can achieve the physical fitness standards that should be met by the average healthy youngster.

Happily, the study also reveals what the average youngster can do to become more physically fit, through basic exercising.

The Fitness Profile of American Youth, from Nabisco Brands, Inc., and the Amateur Athletic Union, is based on an analysis of exercise tests conducted from 1979 to 1981 among more than four million Americans aged six through 17, as part of an ongoing Physical Fitness Program.

Each year, some four million boys and girls in more than 10,000 public and private schools take part in the Program by performing a series of exercises that includes distance runs, sprints, long jumps, high jumps, situps, pushups and pullups.

Dr. Wynn F. Updyke, associate dean for graduate studies at Indiana University's School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, and head of the research team that compiled the Profile, discussed the test results. He said that fitness levels seem to peak at age 14 and to flatten out or decline from that point on, especially among females.

The figures show median achievement levels for boys and girls taking part in the 1979-80 and 1980-81 Physical Fitness Programs.

The average 17-year-old boy takes 12.8 seconds to run 100 yards, while the average 14-year-old boy can cover the distance in 12.6 seconds.

Also, the typical 17-year-old girl can do only 38 modified pushups in two minutes, compared with 43 such pushups by 12-year-old girls.

One reason for this, according to Dr. Updyke, may be the failure of many schools to have compulsory gym and physical education classes after the eighth grade. Thanks to the tests, many schools—and parents—may put a greater stress on physical fitness in the future.

A special film on fitness, "Wes's Way," tells how an award-winning young gymnast named Wes Suter used this Program as part of his training for the 1981 Junior Olympics. It's available in 16-millimeter format for a small rental fee. Also available is a free copy of the Fitness Profile.

Hawk's Junior Varsity victorious

Hancock North Central's Ninth and Tenth grade Junior Varsity football squad Monday downed St. Stanislaus 24-6.

Hawk running back Gary

Fricke scored one touchdown and dashed twice for two-point conversions.

Quarterback Scott Favre ran in two more HNC touchdowns and completed a two-point pass to Darren Lader.

This week's event was the Junior Hawks' first encounter this season.

They play again Monday at 7 p.m. at home against the Pass Christian Junior Varsity.

Undefeated junior Tigers, Rocks to battle tonight

The St. Stanislaus Junior Varsity team will square off against the Bay Junior High School Tigers this Thursday in Tiger Stadium in Bay St. Louis.

Both teams are undefeated this year and the game between the cross town rivals is expected to be a good one.

Bay Junior High Head Coach Cleveland Williams stated, "Coach Schultz's team has overall good speed, and his defensive bunch is real aggressive."

Bay Junior High on the other hand has great balance and quickness in the backfield, he said.

"Both our offensive and defensive lines have good speed. The offensive line for the Tigers is hardnosed and aggressive," he added.

Game time is 7 p.m. and both Williams and Schultz are hoping for a large turnout.

IN THE CHANCERY COURT
HANCOCK COUNTY
MISSISSIPPI
MRS. JUANITA THOMPSON, Plaintiff versus JOSEPH MITCHELL, III Defendant.
SUMMONS
CASE NO. A-383
To Joseph Mitchell, III, whose last known address is unknown, after diligent search and inquiry, and the post office address is unknown to Plaintiff after diligent search and inquiry. You have been made Defendant in the lawsuit filed in this Court by Mrs. Juanita Thompson, Plaintiff, whose address is c/o Joseph W. Cox, P. O. Box 128, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520. The complaint filed against you has initiated a civil action alleging abandonment and desertion of child, and seeking adoption of the minor child, Trevelyn Michelle Mitchell.

You are required to mail or hand deliver a copy of a written Answer either admitting or denying each allegation in the complaint to Joseph W. Cox, Plaintiff's Attorney, whose address is P. O. Box 128, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, not later than the 14th day of October, 1982, which is the date of the last publication of this summons. If your answer is not so mailed or delivered, a judgment by default may be entered against you for the money or other relief demanded in the complaint.

You must also file the original of your Answer with the Clerk of this Court within a reasonable time after said deadline. Witness my signature and official seal this 30th day of September, 1982.

Yankee adventures on Pearl River chronicled by New York Times Civil War correspondent

The New York Times

VOL. XI—NO. 8386.

NEW-YORK, MONDAY, JUNE 2, 1862.

PRICE TWO CENTS.

EDITORS NOTE: This lengthy article is a reprint from the New York Times issue of June 2, 1862. It was provided to us by Bob Daily of Gulfport, an employee at NSTL and a Civil War buff. Since it touched on a part of Hancock County's involvement in the War in addition to so many familiar places we thought it would be of interest to many of our subscribers. We would like to caution you that it does have a 'Yankee' slant, as it was written by a war correspondent from the North. The story is datelined and written in our area on May 22 and it appears 10 days later in the New York newspaper.

NEWS FROM THE GULF.

Postponement of the Attack upon Mobile.

A Reconnaissance of Lake Pontchartrain and Pearl River.

Position of the Surveying Steamer Schem.

THE MORTAR SCHOONERS CRUISING.

Matters at Mobile—Evacuation of Fort Gaines, &c.

From Our Special Correspondent
Ship Island, Miss., Thursday, May 22, 1862.

When I finished my last letter, I was firm in my faith, like everybody else connected with the mortar flotilla, that certainly a week would not pass before we should be battering at the forts which command the entrance to Mobile Bay. A day or two after the departure of the mail, I learned that Capt. Porter had received dispatches from Commodore Farragut, brought from New-Orleans by the steamer Whiteman, via Lake Pontchartrain, forbidding the attack until such time as the Flag-Officer's force should return from its reconnoitering trip up the Mississippi, to participate in the operation.

This fiat of the Flag-Officer occasioned a great deal of disappointment. I don't pretend to know why it was issued, but I am very well aware that Capt. Porter would not have hesitated at attempting the work of reducing the forts with his mortar vessels alone, if the opportunity had been afforded him.

And He must have been moderately confident that success would follow, or he would not have been willing to risk fading the laurels so gallantly won by his flotilla, in bringing the formidable works on the Mississippi to capitulation.

But there is no way of helping this compulsory and unpleasant delay. How long it will continue nobody knows, not even Commodore Farragut himself, and the most sanguine scarcely expect anything to be done within a month.

I am very sure that none regrets the inaction of the mortar fleet more keenly than its commander. His is one of those active temperaments which cannot be at rest when an object is to be pursued or a labor to be achieved.

And Capt. Porter is as capable and modest as he is energetic. I do not think that he requires any eulogy from me, but I cannot help expressing my sincere admiration of him as a self-sacrificing, gallant and good man.

I know from trustworthy sources, a great deal respecting his projection and planning of the expedition against New-Orleans—the difficulties that had to be surmounted, the antagonisms that had to be harmonized; and last, but not least, the untiring industry which he has displayed through months of arduous preparation, as the guiding spirit of the enterprise.

It would not be proper now to write of these matters in detail. It is sufficient to know that his undertakings have been carried to a successful and glorious height and his countrymen will not be slow to award the deserved measure of need of gratitude, nor the Government the honors which his services justly merit.

The Mortar Vessels Cruising
The day after Commodore Farragut's damper was received, six of the mortar-schooners were sent out from Ship Island to cruise between Pensacola and Pass Christian, thus covering the whole line of Coast along the Mississippi Sound, from the shallow harbor of which a number of rebel steamers and schooners, laden with cotton, tar and turpentine, had sneaked out and crossed to Havana.

The schooners had scarcely gone when information was brought over from the main land, by a fishing smack, that there were two rebel gunboats in Lake Pontchartrain, at a place called Mandeville, a small town at the mouth of the Chefuncte River, on the northern side of the lake.

An expedition was at once organized on the principle that grass must not sprout beneath our feet, or rather the barnacles must get grow on the bessels' bottoms, to go up to Mandeville and cut out the gunboats.

It consisted of the Westfield, Capt. Renshaw; Clifton, Capt. Baldwin; and Jackson, Capt. Woodworth; and the little surveying steamer Schem, which had been already of immense service to the mortar flotilla, was to go along in advance of the others as pilot—her officers all belonging to the Coast Survey, and dome of them having made the official charts of the lake and its approaches, were fully competent to act as guides.

This expedition left Ship Island at sunrise of Tuesday, May 13. We passed through Cat Island passage, following our pilot-boat, which was cautiously feeling the way over the shallows with the heaving lead, ever and anon stopping to overhaul a schooner, a sloop or craft of some description, several of which we sighted.

These vessels we fondly hoped would prove to be prizes, containing quantities of cotton and sugar, which would fill our pockets with spending money.

But we soon found out that our pursues would not be made weightier by these coasters. Of the dozen or more which were examined by us, every one had a printed pass, signed by Gen. Butler, permitting her captain to go to a port specified on the paper, and get provisions for the starving poor of New-Orleans.

Although our hopes of enriching ourselves were thus quickly dispelled, and the air-castles build upon them fallen, the general disappointment which was felt only took the form of a gentle oburgation upon Gen. Butler for allowing his food argosies to roam the South without either a United States flag or a rebel rag.

If they had flown the first we would not have been put to the trouble of bringing them to for examination, and if they had dared to exhibit the rag, the trouble of catching them would have been outweighed by the pleasure we should have felt in teaching them better manners.

Several of these vessels had families on board, with their trunks and household traps, seeking refuge by permission of Gen. Butler at Pass Christian, Pascagoula, Biloxi, or some other of the pleasant watering places on the Sound.

I have been telling you about "our movements," as I have a perfect right to do, for I formed one of the expeditionary party, having the consent of the Captain of the Jackson to go with him.

I hailed the chance with joy. What an agreeable relief the trip would be to my occupation of lounging listlessly on the deck of my prison-schooner, feasted upon by flies and simmering under the sun! Besides, what a splendid opportunity for getting something to write about, of which Ship Island did not offer the remotest prospect! So I went.

Well, at 2 o'clock we had gone across Lake Borgne, waiting an hour for an armed boat to go ashore at a place called English Lookout, where a schooner lay partially concealed by the trees.

The officer reported, when he returned from the reconnoissance, that the vessel was not in sailing order—in fact that she was dismantled and leaky, and consequently could be of no service to us.

He added to our stock of knowledge by learning from the only man of the place, who, as well as his wife and eight children, were much disturbed at the visit, that the settlement derived its name in consequence of the English having stationed a man in a large tree to take observations, when, in 1812, under Gen Packenham, they tried to capture New-Orleans.

At 3 o'clock we were steaming through the Rigolets, the straits connecting Lakes Borgne and Pontchartrain. Here we saw the boom of logs and stakes which the rebels had thrown across the stream to prevent access by water to the rear of the city.

This obstruction seemed to have been placed there at great cost of labor and expense, but somebody had taken pains to remove it before we came up, and it lay in a confused heap, huddled against the eastern shore.

Fort Pike was just ahead, looking very pleasant, with its green slopes and pretty shade trees; and as we passed the garrison saluted us by dipping the National ensign.

The fort had a great many guns mounted, one tier of which is casemated, and the appearance of the structure was formidable.

After entering Lake Pontchartrain we steamed ten miles or so, and came to a shoal place, called, in technical parlance, the "middle-ground," where there was but little more than seven feet of water.

As each of our boats, except the Sachem, required eight feet to float her, considerable time was consumed in forcing them over the flats, and it was quite dark when we arrived at the mouth of the Chefunct.

On the way we overhauled half a dozen more schooners, which, however, were provided with Gen. Butler's passes.

Seeing a black smoke over toward Lakeport, which is but seven miles from New-Orleans, Commander Renshaw, the senior officer of the expedition, dispatched the Clifton to ascertain its cause.

It was then nearly dusk, and we saw no more of the Clifton that night.

We found near Mandeville, the United States gunboats New-London, Capt. Reed; and the Calhoun, Capt. DeHaven. This surprised us, for we supposed that these vessels had gone up Pearl River, to clear out the rebel steamers which were believed to have taken refuge there.

And we found, too, that our prey had escaped us, for the rebels, in their usual vandal manner, had set the two gunboats on fire and destroyed them as soon as the New-London and Calhoun appeared.

At the village of Mandeville there was a large white flag flying, and we inferred from this that the inhabitants had an inclination to be peaceable.

Early next morning the Westfield, Jackson and Sachem left on the return trip down the lake, while the New-London remained for a supply of coal, which the Calhoun had gone to bring her.

After steaming an hour we met the Clifton coming up, and her captain reported that the smoke seen the previous evening had come from the steamer Alice Vivian—a boat owned in Mobile, between which city and New-Orleans Gen. Butler permits her to run under a flag of truce, for the purpose of bringing four to the sufferers at the last-named place.

Capt. Baldwin also told us that news had come to New-Orleans by telegraph of the surrender of the City of Mobile to the vessels of the blockading squadron.

This piece of information none of us fully credited, but it made me desirous of returning to Ship Island as soon as possible, to send word, if the report were correct, by the first dispatch boat.

But the water had fallen at least one foot when we came to the "middle-ground," and the Jackson, having less powerful engines than the other boats, could not pass, and remained aground.

Here was a dilemma. We steamed ahead, and backed and lightened ship, and tried every available method of getting her over, but she would not budge.

The Sachem was sent back to assist us, but could accomplish nothing, and I was glad to desert my hospitable friends on the Jackson, who had every prospect of staying where they were, and take a passage on the Sachem, which I hoped would immediately return to Ship Island.

A Daring Reconnaissance Up Pearl River

But it was ordained otherwise. Capt. Renshaw first determined upon taking a trip up Pearl River to Gainesville, a distance of 32 miles; and as it was too late to start that day, we anchored in the Rigolets for the night.

Pearl River empties into the Rigolets by three mouths, the most navigable of which is directly opposite the Rigolets Light-house. It is a deep stream, with very little current, and forms the dividing line for many miles of the States of Louisiana and Mississippi.

A great deal of lumber is produced from the woods which line its banks, and the sawmills, I believe, have not ceased running since the rebellion broke out.

The morning of Thursday, the 15th, dawned with a dense fog, which prevented an early start. It was clear at 8 o'clock, and the three steamers got under weigh, the Sachem leading.

We had a pilot on board named Lawrence, a trustworthy man, who had been taken from a vessel which three weeks before had attempted to run the blockade at Mobile.

He had given undoubted proofs of his Union principles, and all that he told us respecting the character of the river proved to be correct.

We found the stream very tortuous.

For the first eight miles it ran through a marsh, and the boats looked very singular as they meandered along, heading east and then west, as though playing a game of cross purposes.

Then the river gradually became narrower, and on both banks a dense forest grew quite down to the water's edge.

A pretty little village called Pearlington nestled in a clearing on the east side of the river, about ten miles from the entrance, the inhabitants of which seemed to be thrown into great consternation at our appearance.

A small steamer and a schooner were lying at the wharf loading with lumber, and the Captain of the steamer, when we hove in sight, thought of trying to get away from us by "firing up" with resin, but he soon found that he could not be successful and stopped.

We passed by the insignificant little craft without noticing her.

Some terror-stricken women and children ran out of their houses, disappearing into the woods, but I think the majority of the people must have remained, as there were a great many groups assembled to look upon the Yankee invaders.

Mr. Gerdes, chief of the surveying party, sent a boat on shore from the Sachem with Mr. Harris, his hydrographical assistant, to assure the people of our peaceable intentions.

They received his communications without making demonstrations of any kind.

We continued our voyage a few miles further, turning sharp bends, seeing no sign of life, save now and again a lazy alligator, stretched upon a log, and hearing no sound except that of the locusts winding their "sultry horns."

And we seemed to fall into the apathetic mood which harmonized with our surroundings. Suddenly the river branched, and we took the main stream, but beyond this point the Westfield and Clifton could not go.

The course of the stream had now become a perfect zig-zag, the distance from bank to bank not exceeding fifty yards, and the little Sachem, in attempting to make a turn, ran her bows plump into the trees, causing a tremendous crash among the branches.

To extricate her, it was necessary to get out a hawser and make it fast to a tree on the opposite bank; and while this was in progress a boat was sent back to report the condition of affairs to Commander Renshaw.

Near the point where the Sachem ran into the bank, a narrow path led through the woods to a house, some distance from the shore. Three negroes were at the water's edge, divesting an alligator of his skin, and two of them ran away at sight of us.

while the other stolidly continued his work, scarcely honoring us with a sidelong glance.

I am thus particular to narrate these details, as I believe the negroes had something to do with the misfortune which afterward befell us.

It was now about two in the afternoon, and the boat which had been sent to communicate with the Westfield returned, accompanied by another boat, containing Commanders Renshaw and Baldwin, and an armed crew.

On board the Sachem, a consultation was held, which resulted in the determination to go further, the pilot having told us that she would only have to pass three more bad bends, when the river would be wider, and the task of turning be comparatively easy.

So we went ahead, jutting the vessel's prow into the woods at the next angle, again getting her head around with a hawser, and again steaming crash into the bank.

The time consumed in passing two of these turns was not less, I think, than three-quarters of an hour; but the novelty of the situation made it pleasant.

The sailors had stripped branches from the trees, as the vessel rustled among the foliage, with which they decorated their caps in fantastic style, and we were all gay as the naiads and dryads which are supposed to inhabit such sequestered regions.

Suddenly we opened a large-sized plantation-house, built upon a rising ground, a couple of hundred yards from the river bank, from which three men emerged, and ran off in the direction which we were pursuing.

I do not know whether any one but myself saw these persons, but I felt confident that their running boded no good to us.

If they were friendly, curiosity would prompt them to stay and look at us. This thought had scarcely occurred to me, when we heard the report of a percussion-cap in the woods, unmistakably close to the vessel.

Before we had time to remark upon it, a dozen bullets were whizzing over our heads. It flashed upon some of us then, I think for the first time, that we had fallen into an ambush, and such comforting thoughts as that we were utterly helpless and at the mercy (?) of the rebels, must have been shared in common.

A number of loaded muskets were resting against the mainmast, and these were at once grasped, and fired at random into the woods.

Capt. Renshaw ordered his men from the Westfield's boat, which was towing astern of the Sachem, and they, too, used their rifles.

I cannot imagine a more fearful position than we were in for a few moments. The firing continued from the woods, and we could hear the balls whiz by us, but we saw no energy, and not even the smoke of his guns, at which to direct our aim.

I have been unavoidably under the fire of cannon many times, and know the unpleasant sensation of having a rifled shell approach, and the relief which is experienced as it passes by with its awful screech; but there can be no comparison of such danger with the one which now beset us.

It is far more agreeable to know the location of your foe, and what you may expect from him, than to be attacked from an ambush.

Comparing sensations afterward, I found that almost every man on board the vessel through that his time had come.

But while the fight lasted, there was no blanching. Each man showed a determined spirit, doing what was required of him with the utmost composure.

Of course the first thing to be done was to extricate the vessel from her awkward position, and this was left with Mr. J.G. Oltmanns, topographical assistant to the Chief of the Coast Survey party and executive officer of the vessel.

Mr. Oltmanns was standing forward on the topgallant forecabin, a very exposed place, directing the movements of the steamer with the object of turning her, for it would have been impossible to back her down the river.

While so engaged a ball struck him in the right breast, making a wound which disabled him from further duty.

We had no Surgeon on board, and it was quickly settled that I was the most available substitute; therefore to my charge the poor sufferer was committed.

I did all that I knew how for my patient, but that was very little, and I could only assure him that the wound was not likely to be dangerous, as the ball had not penetrated the lungs.

Meanwhile a scattered firing was kept up, although I was not on deck afterwards until we had escaped the danger.

In the confusion consequent upon the unexpected attack, everybody on board the Sachem seemed to have forgotten that she carried heavy guns, and the fact was not remembered until after Mr. Oltmanns was wounded.

Then Mr. J. H. Kroehl, the submarine engineer, who was on board, mustered a crew to the broadside gun, and discharged five shots and then a round of grape into the woods.

Whether the fire killed any of the rebels we do not know, but it had the effect of dispersing them, for they did not reply, and the river again became silent as the grave.

About half an hour was spent in getting the Sachem headed down stream, and the difficulty of turning her was aggravated by the danger of losing or breaking her propellers, if they came in contact with a snag or roots of a tree on the river bank.

We were relieved of a terrible suspense when the task was accomplished, although it was done at the expense of two boats, which were stove and swamped by the propeller.

One of the Sachem's crew did a very heroic action. Before the vessel's head could be brought athwart the river, a line must be attached to a tree on the opposite bank, for the purpose of hauling her bows around. How could the hawser be got there? That was a puzzling question.

Both boats swamped, and the case urgent. The lives of all depending upon celerity of movement.

"Who'll volunteer to carry a line over?" said an officer, and instantly Rice, one of the firemen, announced his readiness.

Attaching a small line to his body, he plunged overboard, swam the river, hauled the hawser over, made it fast, and returned in safety. It was a bold act, and the gallant fellow should be honored.

Two hours or more of this tedious navigation brought us back to the place where we had left the Clifton and Westfield, and Mr. Oltmanns was transferred to the former vessel and placed under the Surgeon's care.

He was suffering a great deal, and the Doctor, on probing the wound, was unable to find the ball, which he supposed had glanced around the ribs and imbedded itself somewhere in the tissues.

The three vessels then returned down the river, and I believe the heart of everybody on board the Sachem was full of gratitude to God for his signal interposition in saving us from what seemed certain death.

Seventeen bullets struck the vessel, one or two passing through the clothing of persons on board, but only Mr. Oltmanns was injured.

Had the rebels chosen, they might have picked us off one by one, themselves unexposed behind the trees, and that they did not I can only attribute to their fright at the discharge of our broadside guns.

How many of the enemy were concealed in the woods we have no means of knowing, although a volley of at least twenty shots was fired, beside a large number of straggling shots.

Lawrence, the pilot, said that there was a regiment stationed at Gainesville, two and a half miles above, and it was his opinion that the men who attacked us belonged to it.

We were sorry to return without having accomplished our object, but it would have been foolhardiness to have gone further, under the circumstances.

That night it was too dark to go beyond the mouth of Pearl River. There we anchored, and at 12 o'clock the next day we were again at Ship Island.

We found that the steamship Baltic, Capt. Comstock, had arrived during our absence, bringing a large supply of mortar-shell, which was greatly needed, as well as a mail, which, if anything, was more acceptable.

Prizes Captured

Upon inquiry of Capt. Porter respecting the rumored surrender of Mobile, I found that the statement, like most fleet rumors, was baseless as the fabric of a vision.

Some of these mortar schooners had returned from their short cruise, bringing with them information, and in one instance a couple of prizes.

The fortunate vessels to make the captures were the Matthew Vassar, Capt. Savage, and the Sea Foam, Capt. Williams. Their prizes were two sloops—one containing forty-five barrels of turpentine, and the other thirty-five bales of cotton,

Coast Dance Theatre member drive underway

The Gulf Coast Dance Theatre, a pre-professional ballet company, will open second season with presentation of the "Nutcracker Ballet" in December. This traditional Christmas ballet, with music by Tchaikovsky, has been a favorite of audiences for years. The Dance Theatre will present evening performances on Dec. 10 and 11 and a matinee on Dec. 12.

Cheryl Black, artistic director of the theatre, will appear in a featured role.

A membership drive is currently underway. Benefactor memberships are available for $150, patron memberships for $50 and $30, and sustaining memberships for $20.

The theatre is a non-profit, tax-exempt civic organization.

For information call Mrs. Norman Montgomery of Diamondhead, membership chairman at 255-3209.

FALL PLANTING FOR SPRING SALADS

If you start planning and planting now, you can have some nice, fresh salad fixings next year... long before your spring-planted vegetables will be ready. Betty Ann Laws told us how she sows greens in the fall, winters them over beneath a layer of mulch, and thereby gets the jump on warm-weather growers.

Of course, lettuce is traditionally considered the basic salad ingredient, and there are several varieties of the leafy vegetable that can be sown in the fall for early spring picking. Arctic King (J. L. Hudson), for instance, produces large heads with crisp, crinkly leaves... while All Year Round (Redwood City) yields compact heads and can be sown again in the spring for an early summer crop... and Imperial Winter (Redwood City) is a fine loose-head variety.

Betty Ann also discovered that there are superhardy spinach varieties such as Winter Bloomsdale (Burpee) and Cold-Resistant Savoy (Stokes), which can be sown in the autumn and harvested all spring long.

You may be interested to know that there are a number of slim and spicy Japanese bunching onions—or scallions—that are intended for autumn sowing to mature by mid-June. Try Kujyo Slender Strain (J. L. Hudson), Hardy White Bunching (Stokes), Kujyo Regular Strain (Redwood City), or Evergreen Long White Bunching (Burpee)...

When it comes to decorating a plate—and adding superior flavor to many dishes—parsley can't be beat. It's slow to germinate, but, if parsley is planted just before the first frost, the chill winter weather will help break the seeds' dormancy. Darki and Bravour (both available from Stokes) exhibit good cold-weather tolerance.

Betty Ann mentioned a few perennial herbs that can also be planted now, to add beauty to your garden while they're contributing color, texture, and flavor to your dinner plate.

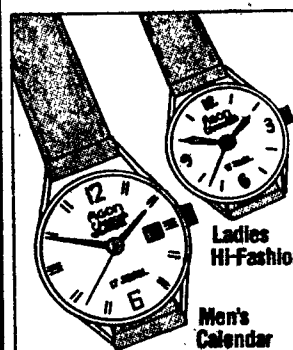

Hyssop, for one, is an undemanding, minty-tasting flowering herb that grows up to two feet high in sun or shade and in any well-drained soil. The leaves of lemon balm add a citruslike tang to food, and the plant stays green until hard frost. Light shade is preferred... and a poor, dry soil will concentrate the herb's lemony flavor.

Sorrel has a tart, tangy foliage that enhances French cuisine, salads, seafoods, and even cottage cheese... while the steamed greens make a superior creamed soup. Betty Ann suggests a moist, rich soil for this herb, with some afternoon shade.

Vegetable seeds for the varieties mentioned in this article may be purchased from the following sources: J. L. Hudson, Box 1058, Redwood City, Calif. 94064; Redwood City Seed Co., P.O. Box 361, Redwood City, Calif. 94064; Burpee Seed Co., Warminster, Pa. 18991 or Clinton, Iowa 52732 or Riverside, Calif. 92502; George W. Park Seed Co., Box 31, Greenwood, S.C. 29647; Stokes Seeds, 737 Main St., Box 548, Buffalo, N.Y. 14240. Seeds for the perennial herbs are available from Nichols Garden Nursery, 1190 North Pacific Hwy., Albany, Ore. 97321.

THE BEST LITTLE WHOREHOUSE IN TEXAS

'The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas' certainly isn't the best little movie in town but if you're a Burt Reynolds or Dolly Parton aficionado you should find enough entertainment in this half-baked musical comedy to make it worthwhile.

'The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas' does little to pique our interest nor does it try very hard to hold our attention.

Rather, Reynolds swaggers about in a kind of self-parody, smiling and acting macho while Parton, clad in lace and plunging V-necks, assumes the aura of a Mae West stereotype.

Surrounding these two supposed love birds is Jim Nabors, who plays Reynold's deputy in what appears to be a reprise of his Gomer Pyle character: the consistently pathetic Dom Deluise, who plays an effeminate television personality; and the veteran character actor Charles Durning, who manages, somehow, to lift his one song and dance number, 'The Political Sidestep,' into a rousing, comical routine.

Except for Durning's triumphant choreographed foolishness, 'The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas' is pretty dull fanfare filled with tired jokes, teenage sexual innuendo and wooden performances.

Incongruity abounds in this picture with two glaring examples. Although Ed Earl (Reynolds) and Mona (Parton) are supposed to be deeply in love, they kiss only once in the entire film (one would suspect this was to avoid smearing Dolly's overabundantly-applied pancake makeup).

Secondly, the overblown background orchestration in this film seems to be lifted off a Cecil B. DeMille biblical epic instead of lending a cohesive transition to and from the musical numbers contained in this pointless project.

Colin Higgins directed 'The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas' as if there were no tomorrow. Inexplicable scenes are thrown in for no reason causing the movie to lurch forward like a 1947 Desoto with a bad clutch.

Especially dismaying about Higgins' heavy-handed direction is his usual proficiency at handling the unusual. His career began as a screenwriter with the bizarre cult classic, 'Harold and Maude.'

This was followed by his directorial debut, '9 to 5,' in which he took otherwise pedestrian material and fashioned a reasonably entertaining movie complete with a delightful Dolly Parton, at the time a novice actress.

A major problem with 'The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas' is Dom Deluise, who could bog down any decent film. He remains in the category of actors and actresses like Dick Shawn, Ruth Buzzi and Kay Ballard, who refuse to play a part legitimately.

But, since he is Reynolds' long-time buddy, Deluise shows up in this picture as the Number Three Banana (right behind Parton) as he has in other Reynolds' films like 'The Cannonball Run' and 'The End.'

'The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas' is a standard film with little or no redeeming value except for die-hard fans of the major stars. As Mona tells Ed Earl, "You need to grow up!"... Bravo! and so does this film.

County Agent's Notes

By John Smith

TEST AND BE SURE

We've said so many times in this column, but the only way you can be sure to apply the right amounts of crop nutrients is by soil testing. That goes for crops, pastures, vegetables, lawns, flowers, shrubs and horticulture crops.

If you grow summer crops, probably the best time to take a soil sample is right after harvest. Then, you have the best opportunity to look over conditions for specific production problems.

Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Soil Testing Department will analyze your soil sample free of charge. Samples are usually returned in five to six days. By soil testing this fall, you can avoid the spring rush.

To take advantage of this free service this fall, contact the County Extension Office. We have all the material you need.
